L.a.C. Says: The City Attorney

Just six years ago this writer fought a losing battle against what he considered unfair attacks on the then City Attorney Irving Smith. The charges were that Smith had deprived the city of use of its oil money for citywide purposes. The allegations used resulted in the defeat of Smith-and his subsequent suicide. He was a sensitive man who felt he had been defeated on false issues. This writer agreed with this view. The treasurer of the successful campaign was the present City Attorney Walhfred Jacobson.

Now we find the same tactics being used against Gerald Desmond, who is an opposing candidate to Jacobson in the coming election. This time the allegations are that Desmond "takes credit" for giving away our tideland oil money to the state. This writer has taken no part in the campaign to date. But here again he sees a deliberate attempt to mislead the peopleand once again the present City Attorney is permitting these charges and allegations to go out on his

We had hoped this campaign would be handled on an ethical plane in keeping with the high responsibilities of the office. But since the Jacobson forces have attacked the personal integrity of Desmond it is time to state the reasons why he was induced to run for office. It was because Jacobson carries a "chip on on his shoulder," is generally discourteous to people with whom he disagrees and shows this attitude in negotiating with department heads and with the state authorities with whom the city must deal.

As to the charges that Desmond has been responsible for giving away anything to the state, Jacobson knows-as does all his committee-Desmond was one of several local officials who lought long and hard to save the tideland oil money for Long Beach. This was the fight on the Allen Bill, which would have taken all the money. This was after the Mallon case decision, which was lost after being defended by Jacobson and after he had refused to accept help of special counsel which the City Council was ready to provide.

Out of that fight Long Beach saved half the oil money-got the two bridges across the flood control -the Navy Landing-Armed Services YMCA-the Marina and money to pay for lifeguards and care of our beaches. Subsidence has virtually been stopped and money is available to carry on all our harbor development and to carry out widespread improvements on our beaches. It was a victory for the city and well may Jacobson take part in claiming credit because he -or his deputies-sat in on every conference and decision that was made. But now he permits his campaign allegations to indicate that Desmond had given away-rather than helped to save-this oil money in our dealing with the state.

We have disagreed with Desmond on many occasions, but we have complete confidence in his integrity, ability and dedication to holding for Long Beach all the rights it has in our great tideland oil field. We know him to be dedicated to walking in the footsteps of his distinguished father, Judge Walter Desmond. That could mean nothing but a loyalty to Long Beach greater than all but a few men hold. Desmond has passed over an almost certain appointment to a judgeship. He has clearly stated he would accept no such appointment during his term of office, should he be elected City Attorney.

We do not find it pleasant to oppose an incumbent seeking re-election. We would have remained silent had not the "Irving Smith" attack tactics been brought out by the Jacobson campaign. The first such attack was made 10 days ago. We remained silent, hoping Jacobson would disavow the allegations, But it was repeated the past week. He cannot now avoid responsibility for it. Such tactics resulted in the death of the former City Attorney. They should not now be allowed to go unchallenged when they are directed at a man who has as fine a record of public service as Gerald Desmond .-- L.A.C.

Development Projected at Sunset Bay

A: Los Angeles syndicate known as Jansan, Inc., re-portedly is ready to develop Sunšet Bay into a major multi-million-dollar pleasure har

The combine of business leaders and developers making up the corporation bought 900 acres of slough and marshland from Lomita Land Co.:

Officials of Lomita declined to disclose the price, but indicated it was in the neighborhood of 10 million dollars.

Most of the area acquired is tidal flats and under water during high tides. It lies easterly of Seal Beach Naval Am-munition and Net Depot and north and east of Sunset Beach.

SOME TIME AGO another group, including Long Beach business leaders, became interested in this slough land and detailed plans for devel-opment of a 20-million-dollar pleasure port. No deal was made, however. The Jansan development probably will be equally costly.

Barry Branned, Beverly Hills attorney for the pur-chasers, said the deal would go into escrow with Title Insurance & Trust Co. and that J. R. Lester Boyle's engineer ing-firm of Santa Ana will design the development.

The heart of the device, designed to be put into orbit in a space vehicle, is a 30pound atomic clock so accurate that it will neither lose nor gain one second in a thousand years.

Purpose of the complicated gadget is to make a physical check on Dr. Albert Einstein's special law of relativity which that time runs slower at high velocities outside the the velocity of light and radio "But the traveling twin would influence of gravitation.

According to Einstein's calculations, a man who traveled 20 years through space at speeds near that of light waves, or 186,000 miles a second, would return to find the earth millions of years older.

To test this conclusion, the Hughes scientists working under Dr. Harold Lyons, head of the atomic physics depart-ment, plan to put their clock into orbit at 8,000 miles altitude at about 18,000 miles an hour.

BY COMPARING radio sig-nals of the "ticking" of the orbiting clock with a synchronized counterpart clock on earth, the scientists expect to corroborate Einstein's law. The atomic clockwatcher will know Einstein was right if the difference between the radio signal and the earthbound clock is as much as one second in 60 years,

This does not mean experiment must run for six decades before it pays off. Because accurate measurements of the relativity predictions can be made within a satellite flight of three weeks, the Hughes clock is being built with an operational life span of 500 hours.

The clocks to be used in the experiment are being con-structed under a $200,000 development contract from the National Aeronautic and Space Administration.

They will bear no resemblance to ordinary wall clocks, Dr. Lyons explained recently although they could furnish the power source for such timepieces. The atomic clock looks more like the inside of a television set.

The device consists of a foot-long electron tube housing a stream of ammonia particles, plus batteries power. The clock uses the vibrations of ammonia molecules at 24 billion times a second, counting these "ticks" by means of electronic gear

CARAVAN NOTES

Jim and Frances Feierabend have been entertaining their two daughters and their families the past two weeks here at Caravan Trailer Lodge, 13782 Hoover St., Westminster. Mr. and Mrs. Donald Schulte and daughter, Peggy Jo, from Chicago; and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Lloyd and their children, Paul Jr., Gale and Jack from Rolling Meadows, Ill. Grandpa and Grandma sure had fun taking the group around to see the sights, including Disneyland, Knott's Berry Farm, Marineland and San Juan Capistrano. The older children seemed to like Grandpa's boat rides the best of all and hated it when it came time for them to leave for home. This was their first visit to their grandparents in a mobile home lodge and they were very impressed with it.

Sunday morning everyone was stirring around early because a hot cake and sausage breakfast was served at 9 o'clock. The men did the cooking under the able supervision of Pearl Elliston and PeeWee Gypson. Carroll Cameron waited on tables. Some 68 plates were tilled to the edge. Pearl got the syrup nice and warm and in her spare time she filled the coffee urn at least three times. It was a delightful affair and many thanks to all who hosted, especially Gladys Cameron, chief hostess.

Postscript to a former story that appeared in this column. The sparrow's nest in Bobby and George Newell's ornamental palm tree is empty. The old folks and the four baby sparrows took off at down Saturday for parts unknown to any of us and with the departure the oh's and ah's have ceased. For a lot of us have watched the raising of this little family with much delight. Bobby feels a little depressed with the departure of his little feathered friends.

The recreation hall at Park Avalon Trailer Lodge, 750 E. Carson St., Torrance, was the setting for an informal dance. Continuous music was provided by Bud Riley with his stereo tape recorder on which he had taped a number of dance tunes including fox trots, waltzes, polkas, etc. Coffee and cake was served during the evening. Similar events will be scheduled from time to time. Those in attendance included Thelma and Walter Black; Millie and Ralph Walker; Ann and Bud Riley; Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Myers and daughter, Kathy; Helen and Bob Turner, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Stettler, Mr. and Mrs. Spong-berg, Caroline Vandervort, Mary Tumminelli and Rosalie

Due to the change over from regular time to daylight saving time, the breakfast scheduled for April 24th was canceled. The next social event will be a potluck dinner on Saturday, May 14, which will be followed by a program of dance tunes presented by "Mr. Music."

When Grant entered his room he found it startlingly hare. There were no sheets, no blankets, no pillow cases for the bed. There were no soap, no towels, no toilet paper in the bathroom.

ROM time to time I've given here a report on the unhappy athletic career of a group of local Kiwanians who bowl under the team name of the "Studs." Now that the service club league bowling is over for the season, it is appropriate for a final report on the

But the Studs last was no ordinary cellar position. They were something like a dozen games behind the next team on the standings sheet. Their role was something SWARMING bees continue to trouble householders of the area. This dept., for some reason, gets emergency calls on this problem. While I was in the East, my conscientious secretary. Anne Barrows, was kept busy with bee calls.

In desperation, she made inquiries and learned that there is a bee man in Garden Grove (LEhigh 9-5082) who will go to a house on request and take the bees. It was also reported that the Garrets, 2550 Palm Dr., Signal Hill, will collect swarming bees.

One man called to report there was a swarm of bees on his gas meter box.

On second thought, he said, he might want to leave the bees there. They might scare away the meter reader and postpone his gas bill for a while.

By BOB HOUSER

Here's a primer on Long Beach's city primary nominatng election May 10, for which sample ballots were mailed to the city's 150,190 registered voters last week.

The voter will cast a ballot or one candidate for City Council of those candidates standing for election in his district. Candidates receiving the first and second high totals in each of the nine Council Districts are nominated. When the two high nominces ace each other in the June general election, every voter then has the privilege of voting citywide, naming ninc

IN THREE other May 10 races the voting is citywide rather than by district only. They are for the offices of city attorney, city auditor and city prosecutor. Each of these vill be decided in the Mav 10 primary because City Auditor John R. Mansell and City Prosecutor James T. Starr are unopposed, and there are only two candidates for city attorney, the incumbent, Walhfred Jacobson and Gerald Desmond.

Citywide voting prevails also for nine ballot propositions lettered A through I. Propositions along with proand con arguments were included in the mailing with sample ballots. Also included was the location of each voter's polling place.

FIVE INCUMBENTS are bidding for re-election in the 33-candidate field for the nine Council seats. Here, alphabetically as on the ballot, are candidates by districts:

Street Program Cost Estimated at $60 Million

By GEORGE WEEKS

A $60,841,000 program of Long Beach street improvements, intended to correct "critical deficiencies" over a period, has been formulated by City Engineer Jess D. Gilkerson as part of a statewide move toward modernizing urban roadways.

The projected improvements are based on the latest inventory of the local street system, along with existing and future traffic conditions.

They provide for only the more urgently needed additions and betterments but conform generally with the revised master street plan approved by the City Planning Commission.

Omitted are freeway and highway construction for which the state rather than the city assumes responsi-

The $60-million-plus figure is within financing reach, the city engineer declared, if the State Legislature decides to increase substantially the allotment of gasoline taxes to local governments.

GILKERSON'S STAFF compiled the 42-page summary in compliance with a resolution adopted at the 1959 session of the Legislature. Copies were filed with top officials of the state highway division for review and referral to legislators. Similar reports are being filed by all other California cities.

One result may be a legislative attempt in 1961 to increase the state gasoline tax by one cent.

The program is detailed by five-year increments and is classified in three categories of improvements.

These deficiencies are shown for Long Beach: Major arterials, 92.14 miles, $32,899,000; collector streets, 23.17 miles, $7,942,000, and local streets, 516 miles, $20,000,-

Of the $60,841,000 estimated total cost based on present prices, $50,223,000 consists of construction and $10,-618,000 for right of way.

THE ENGINEERS' REPORT gives this summary of the program by five-year units:

1960-65—Extension of Livingston Dr. to a common juncture with Palo Verde Ave. at Pacific Coast Hwy.; widening of roadways within existing property lines in Ocean Blvd, and 2nd St.; widening of the 2nd St. Bridge at Upper Alamitos Bay and the resurfacing of Long Beach Blvd. and Atlantic Ave.

1965-70-Improvement of 7th and 8th Sts. as a oneway couplet; major widening of Clark Ave., Atherton St. and portions of Palo Verde Ave.; initial construction of De Forest Ave. as far north as Wardlow Rd. and resurfacing of Pacific Ave., Long Beach Blvd., Carson St., Woodruff Ave. and Bellflower Blvd.

1970-75—Widening of major arterials such as Clark Ave., Wardlow Rd. and Market St.; extension of South St. to a connection with Victoria St., including a bridge over the Los Angeles River; extension of De Forest Ave. as far north as South St.; extension of Magnolia Ave. via a bridge to Pier A in the harbor district; widening of Anaheim St. within existing right of way and resurfacing of Santa Fe Ave., Alamitos Ave., Studebaker Rd., Seaside Blvd, and Del Amo Blvd.

1975-80-Major widening projects on South, Spring and 3rd Sts., with Spring St. extended across the Los Angeles River to Hesperian Ave., and the resurfacing of Ocean Blvd., Long Beach Blvd., Atlantic Ave., Carson

St., Cherry Ave. and Los Coyotes Blvd. The engineers said that in addition to the deficiencies noted, Cherry Ave. and Ximeno Ave. are considered seriously lacking in capacity. However, in lieu of expensive widening, it is proposed eventually to couple these streets with adjacent north-south readways to form one-way

Questionable; B-1 Dangerous

A CURSORY READING OF Propositions B and B-1 on the May 10 municipal ballot may suggest to the reader that the measures are identical in purpose.

Actually, they are very much alike, but there are distinctions which, in all fairness to Proposition B, should be made.

PROPOSITION B-1 IS A thoroughly objectionable measure. It is a proposal to authorize the Mayor, with council confirmation, to appoint "advisors, consultants and legislative advocates."

This measure would open the door to the creation of little councilmanic empires, promoted and kept in operation by crews of field deputies and publicity men. There would be nothing to prevent a council from hiring "advisors, consultants and legislative advocates" for the purpose of keeping that council in office. One effect would be to throw the nine councilmen into administrative competition with the City Manager, thus giving the city 10 Managers and political chaos. Proposition B-1 is a dangerous measure, and we strongly urge its rejection.

AS FOR PROPOSITION B, its basic purpose is to clarify the Council's right to hire the clerical staff and administrative assistant in the Mayor's office. This is a good purpose, and to this extent the measure is a good one.

The troublesome thing about Proposition B is its apparent broadness of scope. Possibly it could be interpreted as giving the Council the same free rein which Proposition B-1 would authorize.

Proposition B states:

"The Mayor may appoint, with the confirmation of the City Council, to fill such positions as shall have been created by the City Council, such assistants. secretaries, stenographers and clerical help as may be deemed necessary to serve in the office of the Mayor and City Council to aid them in fulfilling their legislative duties under the City Charter."

THE PROBLEMATIC WORD there is "assistants." Could not that, too, mean lobbyists and publicity

We agree that this interpretation is possible. In reality, if the public rejects Proposition B-I, obviously the Council would be put on notice that the voters want not such broad interpretation of Proposition B.

As a generality, this may be said of the two measures: B is questionable but, if properly interpreted, could serve a useful purpose; B-1, however, is dangerous on its face and should be defeated.

Our recommendation: A qualified "Yes" on B, a positive "No" on B-1.

When to Schedule Ike Speech Delicate Issue for Convention Heads

By WALTER T. RIDDER AND BILL BROOM

WASHINGTON-Republican convention managers have a problem on their hands---where to schedule President Eisenhower's appearance on the program.

Some strategists want to put him on as early as possible. They reason that they must build up the stature of their candidate, Vice President Nixon, as a man standing on his own feet and not laboring in the shadow of Ike. Were the President to appear near the end, some of the sparkle of Nixon's acceptance speech might be outshown sparkle of Nixon's acceptance speech might be outshone

At present, the managers are inclined to separate the convention appearances of the President and the man they hope will be the next President consideration is being given to asking Ike to give the convention keynote address right at the beginning.

Another problem that GOP high command thinks about is keeping up the interest of television viewers in their show. At the present, the nomination looks like a cut and dried proposition for Nixon.

Said one Republican leader wrestling with that problem: "Well, I guess we'll give 'em a short speech, then a Western, another shot speech and another Western; we'll nominate the candidate---and then run a third Western."

THERE HAVE BEEN SOME rumors that Vice President Nixon is considering young, personable Sen. Thruston B. Morton of Kentucky as a possible running mate. Morton, who is also GOP National Committee Chairman, will, if possible, decline the offer. Why? Because he's a Republican senator from Kentucky and a seat from the state of bourbon and horses is awfully hard to come by for a Republican. If Nixon were elected, he would need as many GOP votes in the Senate as possible and he would be inclined to accept the argument that Morton should be allowed to complete his term.

THE INTENSITY OF SOUTH Korea's student-led protest against the regime of Syngman Rhee stretched halfway around the world. At the height of the disorders in Seoul, four Korean exchange students dropped by their embassy here to talk things over with Ambassador You Chan Yang. They were quiet and well-behaved, however, and departed after a sober chat with him about "what is best for the country." The ambassador later repudiated

Nixon Showing Chills Hopes of Pennsylvania Democrats

WASHINGTON-Vice President Richard Nixon's strong showing in the Pennsylvania primary does more than shore up his political prestige. His nearmillion votes are a sudden chill on Democratic hopes of recouping the party's setbacks in the big Keystone State.

New party registration figures in Pennsylvania recently showed Democratic voters were lagging only a little behind Rep u b l icans in total numbers. This was an astonishing reversal of form from anly two years be-FLEESON fore. Gov. David Lawrence began more than ever to appear a potential kingmaker at Los Angeles, able perhaps to deliver a big bloc of delegates to his convention candidate, and very possibly his state in the election.

The large write-in vote for Sen. John Kennedy also affects the convention picture and Lawrence's role in A Catholic himself, Lawrence has displayed a personal preference for Adlai Stevenson and arranged to take an uncommitted delegation west with

THE GOVERNOR will still do that; there is nothing binding about the Pennsylvania presidential primary. But he will have to take note of the fact that Kennedy swamped his competitors and aroused about 180,000 voters sufficiently to write his name on a ballot. This bloc can be expected to be vocal about its favorite when the wheeling and dealing begins.

There are some circumstances which mitigate the impact of the victory headlines. The Vice President's name was printed on the ballots and there had been a drive to get out the vote for him and so remove the sting of his Wisconsin showing.

Democrats were in similarly positive ways actually discouraged from recording presidential preferences. The small size of their totals indicates that the party organization was responsive to this strategy. But while this minimizes the gap between the Nixon vote and Kennedy's, it makes Kennedy's feat the more impressive.

Also, it was a horse-racing issue which got out the vote rather then enthusiasm for the presidential candidates. A careful analysis of the voting by districts, which is never possibly anickly, could develop other factors affecting the out-

STILL IT is always better to come out first in any situation and by nice big round numbers. In politics it helps to create that nebulous aura of a trend, and this is exactly what Kennedy needs to do.

Rayburn Hits Delay on Aged Health Bill

WASHINGTON - The vote was supposed to be strictly secret, but older geople will be interested in knowing that seven Democrats and 10 R epublicans lined up against them when the Ways and Means Committee voted on the hotbefore Congress-health benefits to old people.

Speaker Sam Rayburn was so miffed at the way seven Democrats deserted him that he gave a blunt. warning to Chairman Wilbur Mills of Arkansas, who also voted against the old people.

"I WANT a bill, said Mr. Sam gruffly, "I'm not suggesting how you write it, though health insurance for the aged should be handled under the Social Security program in my opinion, and not as a government subsidy for private insurance

"There already has been too much delay," continued the Speaker. "It's partly the Speaker, "It's partly because of White House indecision, but I hope the committee will get busy and report something."

Since then, Chairman Mills has been trying to line up Democratic votes in his committee for a compromise bill proposed by Montana's Metcall, This would give persons over 65 Social Security benefits for hospitalization in extended illnesses requiring more than three days of hospital or rest-home attention. It would not include surgical care, which the doctors' lobby opposes.

After a recent nose-count, Mills reported to Speaker Rayburn that Democrats Boggs (La.). Ikard (Tex.), and Frazier (Tenn.), probably would support such a compromise, in addition to himself. This would still leave the oldsters shy one vote on the 25-man committee.

Meanwhile the 10 adverse Republicans have heen standing pat, waiting instructions from the White House. Word from the White House was expected last week when Health Secretary Arthur Flemming appeared before the committee.

Don't you have something to tell us today?" Mills asked Flemming.

in his chair, the Secretary replied: "No. I came here today to listen to the staff discuss some of the technical aspects of these legislative proposals.

NOTE: Here is the secret rollcall for the Forand bill: Democrats Aime Forand (R.L.), Cecil King (Cal.), Thomas O'Brien (III.), Eu-Green (Pa.), and Leet Metcalf (Mont.).

Against Living Room Crook

"No one is safe from the living room racketeer," Cole says. "There is a salesman made who can take each one of us."

Cole told of the music lesson dodge. A shlock or "suede shoe boy" calls in the early evening, after the Better Business Bureau is closed, after schools are closed, and tells parents their little boy has exceptional musical talents-his teacher says so. After lessons, the boy will get a uniform and will ride in an accordion band on a float in the Rose Bowl Parade. Parents often end up signing a contract for about $500 worth of stuff, which includes an accordion and lessons.

The accordion is a piece of junk which has some operating keys, some painted on. Lessons are often inferior. The deal turns out to be very shabby indeed. Meanwhile, the $500 contract has been sold to a collection agency and the huckster is gone.

"Signature" is the magic word to the con man. The consumer's signature on a contract is valuable merchandise which the crooks can sell easily. En route to getting the signature they may promise the moon but the contract itself may be sheer dross, cold, businesslike and final.

Consumers Counsel is designed to be the instrument of a statewide defender against the fly-by-night operators. Cole points out that some local laws are not strong enough to nab the crooks, but through cooperation of state and local bunco experts and a compilation of all available law against the racketeer, the most massive assault can be made against operators who drain millions of dollars each year from honest, established mer-

DAVID LAWRENCE

Demos Getting Edgy About Nixon

WASHINGTON --- Are the Democrats getting more and more scared of being defeated by Vice President Nixon in the next election? Fifty - five Democrats in the House of Representatives were so sensitive about the favorable pub-licity that Vice President might receive if he attended the "summit" conference LAWRENCE at Paris during a possible absence of President Eisenhower that they signed a public protest. They called on Mr. Eisenhower to "explain why during this election year he has suddenly decided to relinquish his job as President to the candidate he has endorsed as his successor," They added: "By this obvious and transparent partisan move, the Republican administration has subordinated the hopes of Americans and free men everywhere for peace in the world to the political ambitions of Vice President Nixon,"

Such a statement seems incredible. Without bothering to look into the facts and circumstances surrounding the President's decision, the 55 Democrats jumped to the conclusion that it was all just a brazen political move. What probably happened is that some publicity man in the Democratic camp prepared the statement and rushed to get signatures on Capitol Hill, What, however, are the facts about the President's decision? They could easily have been obtained. Mr. Eisenhower said to his press conference on Wednesday: "Congress is in session and there are a number of bills that are important before the Congress. If they should come at an awkward time for me, and I felt that they should be vetoed-now, I have quite a tough time schedule because any important bill that requires a veto, not only requires the most, the deepest study in the departments concerned but it demands daily consultation with me because I am the one that has got to be convinced that this is a had bill or a good bill and therefore you cannot do this-if these bills are important-from a distance. "Now, the only reason

I was — simply put the warning." The key to the President's purpose may be read between the lines. The Soviets want a long conference, Mr. Eisenhower doesn't want to spend several weeks in Paris. In the 1955 conference at the "summit" in Geneva, a time limit was placed on the whole thing. This has not been done for the coming Paris conference.

It was natural, therefore, for Mr. Eisenhower to utter word of warning. It was a difficult and delicate subject to handle, internationally speaking, so the President decided to serve warning indirectly that he would not engage in a prolonged palaver at Paris. This is a maneuver in the conduct of foreign relations which the President ought to be able to make without the sabotaging tactics of partisans on Capitol Hill. Surely the President of the United States ought to be free from petty sniping as he prepares for a "summit" conference on which hope for peace and disarmament is being based throughout the world. Surely there must be ample time between June and November of this year for the snipers and the smearers to carry on their partisan attacks against Mr. Nixon, Surely mere attendance for a couple days or even a week at the "summit" conference by Vice President Nixon, as he sits in for the President till Mr. Eisenhower can return to Paris or until the conference adjourns, is not something so catastrophic to the Democratic party's hopes for victory in 1960 as to cause so many of its members in the House, as well as some in the Senate, to lose perspective.

Scopes Trial Drama Opens on L.B. Stage

Clarance Darrow for the defense is only thinly dis-guised in the Lawrence and Lee drama "Inherit the Wind," which opened this weekend at the Off-Broadway Theater The play is a dramatization of the famous Scopes trial in Tennessee of the 20s, a trial celebrated, if not immortal ized, by a Baltimore news

Mencken is dead, Darrow is dead, prosecutor William Jennings Bryan is dead, and Scopes has long since passed out of public view. All, however, come to life for a few memorable moments on the stage. More than Scopes was on trial in that hot little courtroom. The modern scien tific world was pitted against a narrow view of the world, and the decision was an important one.

It was an exciting event too, as the play makes clear A courtroom scene is a nat-ural for a playwright, and Lawrence and Lee play this one for all it is worth. If it is less gripping upon oc-casion than it might be, the fault lies in the production not in the script.

THE FACT is that while the major players are good they still aren't good enough. Carl Goodwin as Henry Drummond (Darrow) looks just right, homespun to the extent of dishevelment, and brings a very interesting quality of voice to the part, but his lack of variety in intensity and pace sometimes confuses what is important from what isn't. The solid qualities of the brilliant lawyer don't entirely emerge.

Ralph Richmond, as Mat-thew Harrison Brady (Bryan)) is often very powerful and convincing, especially in the final scene of the second act. He makes Brady look like something of a fool, but a fool who has some redeeming human qualities, so that his final disintegration is tragic to see Hornbeck (Mencken), as played by Rick Perez, is far less incisive and ironical than one remembers the original as being. In addition, some of his lines are lost through his too offhand delivery.

MOST OF THE rest of the cast have little to do except to set the narrow atmosphere of a provincial town, but they do that very well. There are twenty-eight people and one monkey in the cast, and that many on a small stage ade quately represent a multitude. Bill McIntyre and Sylvia Har ris handle the minor romantic element of the play unobsru-sively. Eugene Conrad is particularly effective as the Rev

All of this sounds like less than a completely enthusiastic response to the play, and it is, but that doesn't mean that the production isn't worth seeing. It is. This is a mature, serious play on an rtant though dated theme, and one which rewards the theatergoer, even in a less-than-perfect production, with a worthwhile the atrical experience. Long Beach could use more of the same

IN THE three-game series which ended Saturday, Mc Covey helped the Giants to two victories by driving home eight runs with three homers a double and a triple. # 8 Marks Fall in Torrid L.B. Meet

The Southern California Striders came to town Saturday—and sun worshippers and statisticians had a field day.

Competing in near-perfect weather on a blazing track, the National AAU champion Striders dominated Long Beach State and City College in their second annual meet before 600 fans at the Viking field.

The photo finish judges had a busy day. So competitive were the events that 18 records of one sort or another were broken. The thrillers were the hurdles races.

Gary Patterson of Long Beach State was wire to wire winner in the highs, but it took his all-time best performance and a new school record to subdue brilliant Dee Andrews of City College and Olympian Rafer Johnson of the Striders.

ning wide open all the way. Patterson's lead was so slender that the winner was open for debate until he broke ahead by five feet over the last hurdle. Patterson's time was 14.2,

ANDREWS caught Johnson, who was making his first running appearance of the season, over the third barrier. They glided over the remaining hurdles in perfect unison to the finish, with Andrews earning second place by the thickness of the tape. Both were credited with 14.3

The story wasn't much different in the

Andrews, Patterson and Strider Bob Wilson broke from the blocks together. Andrews led by inches to the ninth hurdle, tape gave him a four-foot victory over Wilson in 23.1. Each of Andrews' hurdles marks was the best in Southern California JC ranks this season. The other short races also were marked hy blistering stretch battles and nip and tuck finishes. Rod Richard, the ex-UCLA star making a comeback, won the 100 over Wilson by inches. Both were timed in 9.6.

Strider Mike Larrabee nabbed the 220 in 20.7, one of the top marks in the world, and nabbed the 440 in 48.3. John Patty of LBCC was a good third in 49.0, and Dick Glasgow's 50.6 equaled his State record.

Bob Seaman, another ex-Uclan eyeing an Olympic Games berth, won the mile in 4:19.9, a new State record, and Gary Lovejoy was fifth in 4:23.8, the only LBCC record of the day.

Bob Humphreys, the Tarzan-constructed ex-City College record holder, scored an outstanding weight double, winning the shotput at 58-1 and the discus at 163-5. He had an extra throw of 177-612.

Ghosts of Blooperstown Greet Giant

With an appropriate fanfare of three toots on a goat's horn, we unveil today baseball's numbskull hall

Enshrined in this mythical museum of memorabilia are the masters of the diamond faux pas, the harlequins of the game, their plaques hewn of rock to perpetuate their blunders.

By unanimous ballot, the names of Fred Merkle and Mickey Owen occupy the highest pedestals in the boo-boo room. Merkle is remembered not for his dozen years as a journeyman infielder, rather for one mental lapse that cost the Giants a pennant in 1908. The man merely forgot to touch second base.

Owen sprouted the goat's horns right through his catcher's mask in the 1941 World Series. It was his passed ball that led to a ninth inning Yankee rally in the fourth game and the eventual series victory over the Dodgers.

STRANGE THINGS HAPPEN in the pressure of championship play. In the last regular season game of 1959, Phillies pitcher Humberto Robinson made a pickoff throw to first base in hopes of easing a Milwaukee rally. Only first base was unoccupied and the balk helped the Braves win to force a playoff with the Dodgers.

The most recent candidate for the hall of appall is Andre Rodgers, the Giants' utility man who allowed a Dodger run to score Friday night because he thought the side had been retired.

Not all such shenanigans lead to disaster. The Dodgers' Norm Larker may be barred from membership because his base running boner of last year did not result in defeat. Larker, instead of retracing his steps from third to first after a fly ball had been caught, cut across the infield and sneaked behind the pitcher's mound.

The wails of Blooperstown are buiging, but there always will be room for more.

Waiting to be processed are applications of Rex

Barney, Frenchy Bordegaray, Bruce Edwards, Smead Joiley and Dixie Walker, filed by some of the present Dodgers.

COACH BOBBY BRAGAN was an infielder for the Dodgers when wildman Barney made his bid in a tie game against the Giants.

"The winning run was on third base and Sid Gordon was the next hitter," Bragan recalled. "Burt Shotton was the manager, but, since he always wore street clothes, he sent coach Clyde Sukeforth to the mound to tell Barney how to pitch to Gordon.

Long Beach State coach Dick Clegg probably rues the day he predicted a fourteam CCAA baseball race with San Diego State one of the two absentees.

For Saturday the alwayspowerful Aztecs made life mean for Clegg and his men by dealing the 49ers a 9-4 setback at Blair Field. It and two-thirds innings of two-hit, shutout pitching.

Long Beach was its own worst enemy at bat as it greatly nullified 10 hits and nine walks doled out by Aztec pitcher Bob Imlay by stranding 15 men on base. The frustration tempo was set in the very first frame when the 49ers put men on second and third with no one out and failed to score.

Singles by Dave Watt and Dick Nen and three walks brought across a pair of runs in the third, a triple by Tom Turrill produced one in the seventh, and singles by Roger Hull and Watt added the fourth tally in the eighth.

Cholly's Folly With Cubans Not So Jolly

Cubans have contributed much to the major league scene in recent years . . . but baseball men are in unanimous agreement that the fiery and unpredictable latins can drive a manager to the verge of a nervous breakdown.

Charley Dressen, who brings his Milwaukee Braves into the Coliseum Wednesday, is an authority on Cubans. After all, he formerly managed the Washington Senators . . . the first club to really exploit the Cuban ball-player.

While coaching the Dodgers last year, Charley one day began reminiscing about his experiences with the

> There were only four of them with the Nats when Charley arrived in Washington . . . but he says it seemed like a couple of First there was Pedro

Ramos, who had a built-in aversion to advice. During spring training, Charley discovered that unlike most pitchers, Pedro was a very fast and daring base-run-

So, all spring long Charlev used Ramos as a pinchrunner, but this noble practice ended abruptly on the opening day of the season against Baltimore . . . and in front of President Eisenhower vet!

The Nats had a man on third base and Dressen figured it was time to bring on his No. 1 pinch-runner, Ramos. There was a lengthy conversation with Ramos grinning pleasantly throughout as if he understood every word that was spoken. Dressen went back to the coaching box where he promptly waved his arms to signal for a bunt. But by the time Pedro got the idea that the squeeze was on, so did the Orioles. Charley had performed the rare feat of "stealing" his own sign for the other team, thanks feat of "stealing" his own sign for the other team, thanks to Pedro. Dressen ended this bit of comedy by bringing in another pinch-runner for pinch-runner Ramos.

PEDRO HAD A FORK BALL OF which he was very proud. Dressen called him in to pitch against the Yanks one day with the bases loaded and one out. He told Pedro not to throw the fork ball but to fire his superb fast ball mixed with a sinker. Pedro smiled pleasantly, which Charley says should have been the tipoff. Anyway, he promptly threw the fork ball and the batter cleaned the bases with a double.

Another of the Cubs was Juan Delis, who was described as one part infielder, one part hockey goalie and one part soccer player.

Juan made his debut against Kansas City and when be was pressed into emergency service at third base he turned in quite an exhibition as a hockey goalie that night except that in baseball the idea not only is to knock the ball down, but also throw it to the Senor on first base. In the midst of Delis' exhibition that evening, Dressen and his first lieutenant, Cookie Lavagetto, set a "first" in baseball when they called time and gave Delis some pointers on how to play third while the other players stood around and watched. It was the first time anybody had held a school of instruction in the midst of a big league game.

THEN THERE WAS CARLOS Paula, who was allergic to thinking. He had Charley frantic one afternoon when he set some sort of a record for most times refused to go home on perfect squeeze bunts.

It happened in one inning after he had reached third base. Three times he faked a run for the plate on the bunts and would easily have made it, but each time he scampered back to third where he would grin happily in the knowledge he hadn't been caught. The run never did score and the Nats lost another one

Paula also distinguished himself on another occasion in Cleveland. He was playing right field and the score was tied in the 10th with the home club at bat. With two out, Al Smith singled. The next batter, Bobby Avila, rapped a single to right field.

It was not a fatal blow . . . until Paula got "clever."

Avila took a big turn around first and Carlos did a good job of bluffing him back to first while holding the ball. But in the meantime, he forgot about Smith who kept right on running to score the winning run while Carlos was still playing tag with Avila.

DRESSEN ADMITS HIS BIGGEST problem child was another pitcher, Camilo Pascual, who became easily up-set. This would lead to lack of control.

There was the day in Boston when the Red Sox were pounding him at will. Sammy White came to the plate and Pascual promptly plunked him in the ribs with a pitch. The next time White came up, the same thing happened. Only quick work by the umps prevented a free-

After the game, Charley reveals he gave Camilo an earnest lecture about losing his head. "I thought I had got through to him," he says. "But the next day when I called him in to relieve, darned if he didn't plunk White again."

Later that year, Dressen inherited a fifth Cuban, who was called up in mid-season to play shortstop.

When Jose reported, Dressen wearily engaged him in conversation. "Me," he said. "Me, manager. Patron, boss. You play for me, aint you?"

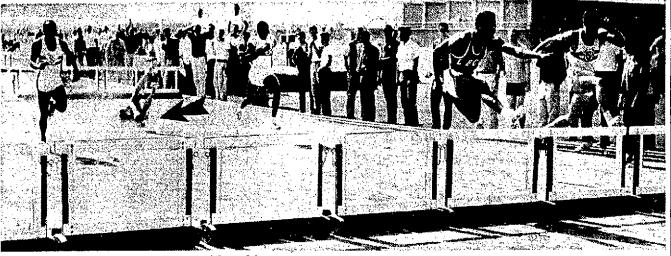

Valdivielso listened patiently and then replied: "Mr. Dressen, I have studied English all my life. I should be happy to communicate any instructions you have to my countrymen and I wish to say I am delighted with the opportunity of playing in the big league."

Now that trout season is open throughout the state and ocean fishing is running from average to red-hot, California's anglers have a chance to get a full measure of all kinds of fish in the next two or three months. But after that, what then?

They may have to depend on planted streams and lakes and, of course, the ocean. That means-and this is no guesswork-that fresh-water anglers should get their baits, lures and flies into the water early this year if they intend to bring home fish for the table.

Despite a late rainfall last week, with snow in the mountains, some streams that never knew a dry spell will be without water before mid-July, and that embraces some of the most popular creeks in the Sierras.

When the Fish and Game Department starts worrying about streams that feed its hatcheries as early as April, one begins to realize just how low the water supply can be, and that is what is happening this year.

So, when you are told to do your trout fishing as early as possible, take heed. It may mean the difference between a full or partial limit of trout, or nothing!

IF YOU LIKE OCEAN FISHING, the next two weeks should be the best for the neophytes, as well as the veterans who try it the year around. Both Pacific and Pierpoint Landings have reduced their fares by one-half, which means that any one may fish on a half-day boat for $2.50, or $4.25 all day.

Even though the yellowfail have made themselves scarce in the last 10 days, those log barracuda are running and they can give a fight that one will always remember. Also, bonito have returned in great numbers, and if any one can find a fish that outlights the honehead, nunce for ounce, this columnist will be happy to provide free tickets on any fishing boat. You may wonder why half-fares are offered. Frankly, the operators of fishing boats lose money on such deals, but, at the start of the season, all skippers are anxious to meet new people, who might become steady customers.

It's like any other business; the owner needs a "leader" that will cause the prospective customers to look.

If you can't or don't like to ride the swells, try the piers, the surf or the breakwaters, and use light tackle. You'll have more fun than you would catching a sevenor eight-inch trout. And it's not nearly so expensive!

HATS OFF TO SOME FINE GUYS in the Long Beach Sportsman's Club, one of the organizations that keeps the outdoors merry, the fish swimming and the ducks flying! Always the strongest Long Beach supporter of Ducks Unlimited, the Sportsman's Club has just added several hundred dollars to the DU investment in Canada. Four hunters, Everett Van Winkle, Ivan Bowman, Tex Herndon and Willy Hendrickson, donated their winter-killed ducks for a feed, which was prepared by some lovely ladies of the club at NO cost the other night. The proceeds ($1.50 per plate) plus a fat DUK-A-NIKEL can were turned over to this writer, who is Long Beach chairand believe me, that money is going to help produce more ducks in 1960.

The Sportsman's Club, situated at 3623 Santa Fe Ave. was robbed three times last year. On the third try, the burglar took the DUK-A-NIREL can, bought some whisky and fell asteep on a Lincoln Park bench. He was jailed and a few dollars found their way back to the Sportsman's Club. The members of the club responded in great style and refilled the can with folding money and big

'Bal Week' Crowd, Switching to Avalon, Keeps Police Busy

By MARY NEISWENDER I, P-T Staff Writer

CATALINA ISLAND — To the beat of bongo drums, the "Bal Week" crowd invaded this resort as islanders staged their Second Annual Buccaneer Day festivities.

The bongo-beating buccanects began their mass sea and air invasion of Avalon Friday and the sun hardly had set before the first of numerous arrests took place.

Reject Shift in Catalina Air Service

WASHINGTON (I) - The Civil Aeronautics Board has refused to reconsider its decision of last Nov. 12 in providing air service for Santa Catalina Island.

Pacific Air Lines had asked the CAB to stay the effectiveness of the certificate for such service that it granted Avalon Air Transport, Inc., and to conduct a further hearing.

Pacific also requested a ertificate to operate between the Los Angeles area and San Diego and Santa Catalina.

The CAB said Avalon is clearly the airline that can best meet the requirements of the "unique" Los Angelesisland market, where traffic consists largely of one-day excursionists and involves Thursday in Longfellow and directional peaking probLOOK! WANT A REGULAR MONTHLY INCOME?

He puts a wire into the brain which stimulates certain wave centers and gives them great pleasure, In

He is a master of light and mist and water, and painted over and over again cathedrals and haystacks, the houses of Parliament, and rows of poplars, not to mention his own enchanting water garden at Giverny in shifting cycles of sunlight and shadow, haze and storm. Miss Hawthorne was active in student government at Polytechnic High School. She will be graduated in June from LBSC with a major in elementary education, and currently is president of Associated Women Students and secretary of the Association for Childhood Education Other offices which have merited the listing of her name in "Who's Who Among Stu-dents in American Universities and Colleges" include secretary of AWS, rush chairman of Delta Zeta, Panhellenic representative and Greek Week chairman. shimmering color, elated by the feeling of air and freshness. The exhibition gathered from owners all over the world is an incomparable treat.

Another stimulating experience, in another medium, is Lillian Hellman's play, Toys in the Attic. It is a relatively grim evening, but a powerful play admirably acted and written by a woman with insight into human behavior and a sure command of the English language. I wish Miss Hellman would get interested in those dolphins, many's the neat phrase they'd be able to HE'S BUTTONHOLED turn under her tutelage.

HER PLAY is adult theater and recently when I was with Anita Colby and David Selznick, we got to talking about adult movies. Anita feels that in the United States we use the word adult when we mean a dubious sex picture. On the other hand, an adult mature viewpoint certainly exists and should be catered to. I said that, in my opinion, adult means a realistic acceptance of life as it is rather than the "they lived happily ever after" philosophy which characterizes 99 per cent of our movies.

David Selznick agreed with me to some extent, but he feels that as a people Americans are more optimistic than Europeans. We like to think, at least to hope, that all is for the best in this best of all possible worlds. Europeans having lived more rugged lives over longer centuries are aware that this is not so and accept it, and on the whole with philosophy and humor rather than bit-

Big event on the Lakewood campus of Long Beach City College this week is the long-awaited Spring Sing, scheduled for 8 p. m. Friday in the auditorium. Contestants have been rehearsing many weeks and preparing costumes and stage sets for the annual charity-benefit extravaganza. Participating clubs are Engineers, Entre Nous, Hammurabi, Mahabharata, Ramayana, Tammuz, Tils-men, TNT, Tong, Tyr and Vidar. Awards include a sweepstakes trophy and first and second-place tro-phies in both the men's and women's club divisions.

Also due to be presented Friday evening is the Charity Drive Trophy for outstanding club participation in the Books for Asia Drive and other charity and scholarship benefit events since January. This award will be made during intermission by Representative of the Student Body Ron Spring Sing tickets will be available at the box office for $1 Friday evening or from club members on campus during the week.

SECRETARIAL students at the Business and Tech-nology Division have been leaving mysterious notes around campus that look like secret code or the kind of language spoken by those goggle-eyed robots in outer space fantasies. Actually, the sinister-looking communications turn out to be Stenoscript, an abc form of shorthand, as transcribed by students of instructor Beth Doerr.

A representative sample goes like this: "- s-- v - k, n -z CS, T-- Us-g v fzj." Translation: "The sentiment of the committee in these circumstances transcends the understanding of the physician." Or, to do it in reverse, "The ability of the parachute to exert force against wind pressure is contrary to all equations of mathematics" may be rendered "-B, v - pzu t x/ fs ag - w- pzu i Kv t l eq] v m-."

Stenoscript is reportedly much easier to learn than regular shorthand, and of value for personal as well as business office use.

Formal Methodist Ceremony

Two young persons, prominent in Long Beach high school and college ac-tivities, exchanged wedding ows at Atlantic Avenue Methodist Church in the presence of 425 guests.

The bride, Linda V. Jones, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Jones; the bridegroom, James O. Armor, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Armor.

Given in marriage by her father, Miss Jones wore an imported silk organdy gown over white taffeta. Streamers falling from a large bow at the back were attached to a chapel train; her shoulder-length veil of imported silk illusion was attached to a double crown of seed nearly and sequins. She held a cascade of white coatsonias, alliums and cattelva orchids tied with maline streamers.

MRS. JOHN Burrow, matron of honor; Mrs. Judi Carroll, Adrianne Armor and Marilyn Armor, bridesmaids, were gowned alike in white nylon organza over taffeta with touches of pink embroidery. They carried pink floral caşcades.

The bridegroom as ked John Burrow to serve as best man; John Williams, Raymond Rinella, Ronald Hibbling and Jeffrey Jones seated guests.

Days of Forty-Niners

Today's column is devoted to a group embarking on a program which we believe will add much to the stature of our college-the Long Beach State Alumni Association.

Like many other phases of the LBSC scene, the alumni outfit has been around for quite a while without being too much in the public eye, but we pre-dict this will change before

For instance, as part of Friday's 49er Day program, college president Dr. Carl W. McIntosh and alumni president Larry Pearce took part in ceremonies official-ly naming "Merriam Walk," a thoroughfare near the

The action commemorates the late Frank F. Merriam, governor of California 1934-39, and climaxes LBSC alumni efforts to honor the long time resident of Long

TO OUR knowledge, LBSC's "Merriam Walk" is the first recognition of its kind for one of this area's most famous citizens.

Another alumni project is the erection of a marker to inform motorists on Bellflower Boulevard that they are approaching Long Beach State, With the assistance of the art department which is working on the design, the project is shaping up, and come fall, say alumni officials, Long Beach State will no longer be nameless on its western boundary.

A little closer at handthis afternoon, in fact, the association is having its annual picnic in Long Beach's Recreation Park at I p.m. This is an informal get-together which is designed to renew old friendships, and help old grads keep track of one another. Coffee will be furnished, and a children's play area will be nearby. Just look for the sign, say alumni officials.

THE association will soon incorporate as a non-profit organization, and thus will be able to provide additional services to its members, One of the first items on the agenda is tickets for athletic events at reduced rates, action which should strike a responsive chord in view of improving 49er sports fortunes

At the same time group officers are working to set up an accurate address list of all Long Beach State graduates. Naturally, they hope to add to membership rolls, but primarily they want to be able to render service to former LBSC

For instance, the placement office frequently receives requests to hire graduates who have been in the field two or three years. The association hopes, from an expanded accurate address list, to be able to work to the mutual advantage of several parties-LBSC alums especially.

ANOTHER drive involves

class of '60 before they

Incidentally, the coming 1960-61 year will represent the last chance for a life membership in the association for the bargain price of only $25. From now on, the cost will rise $5 each year until it reaches a level similar to other schools. (The $25 can be paid in installments, too-how's that for eggs in your beer?)

All-in-all, these remarks add up to this: If you are a graduate of Long Beach State, and are not on the alumni association's mailing list, you should be. Let them know where you are. Address your letter to: Alumni Åssociation, Loπg Beach State College, 6101 Seventh St., Long Beach 4, ally led a trump. East rose with the ace and made the mistake of not cashing his ace of diamonds. Instead, he returned a heart where-upon Mrs. Nichols developed a squeeze for the rest of the tricks,

Hope to see your name on the muster list.

THE KEY play came immediately. She won the heart and promptly ruffed a third heart. This left West with the only high heart so that when Mrs. Nichols ran out all her spades West was in a hopeless trap. He had to hang on to a heart. Mrs. Nichols discarded both diamonds and a low club from dummy and finally after the four of hearts had done its work of squeezing West she let that go also and wound up with four club tricks.

Of course, there are better and more complicated squeezes but the proof of the pudding is in the eating and Mrs. Nichols played for and made the maximum.

Recently, in a review I wrote of an orchestral performance by the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra, I said this of the con-

"What magnificent performances we have had under the direction of Georg Solti! He infuses music with vitality, excitement, poetry and nobility. And how keenly the orchestra men respond to him. His conducting of the "Schumann Symphony in D Minor" at the close of the program, left the audience gasping. It was a great triumph for Solti and for the orchestra. The audience avalanched him with shouts and overwhelming applause. And yel, with such an orchestral genius in our midst, we are doomed again to another year of guest conductors!"

And now, for some good news to my readers. Georg Solti has been engaged as permanent music director of the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra, a post that has been vacant since the death of Eduard van Beir.um last year. Through a decision, difficult to un-derstand, we still are "doomed" to have a year of guest conductors, but the season 1961-62 will see the installation of Georg Solti as our regular conductor.

BECAUSE I admired his conducting so much I interviewed him and wrote about it in my column of Dec. 28, 1958. Here are some of the highlights:

"Solti is 45 (now 48). He has sparkling white teeth, flashing brown eyes and a

Try Stretch Exercises With Your 9-Day Diet

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN position. Walk back to

The first spring sunshine makes us want to stretch and stretching is good for the figure as well as for the soul, I thought it would be appropriate to give you a couple of stretching exercises to go along with the 9-Day Diet, Here they are:

Lie on the floor on your back with your legs straight and your arms resting on the floor overhead. Keen your arms in this position as you "walk" as far to the left as you can with your heels. Take very small steps with the heels. Do not let your hips roll to the left. Keep the hips in starting place. This time walk with the heels to the right and then back. Continue, alternating left and right. This gives you a fine pull through the waist, Keep the knees

THE FRONT or side bend exercises are splendid if done correctly. The knees must be stiff throughout the exercise and the important stretch is not with the arms but through the diaphragm. This comes from lifting the rib cage. These exercises should also be done slowly.

CHEF OF THE WEEK

Stantons 'Royalty' Falters in Kitchen

By MILDRED K. FLANARY

We'll betcha he could stand up in a canoe-break an egg and "land" it where he wanted it. At least he appears to have the situation under control. As chairman of the music department of Long Beach City College for the past two years, and director of the choral organizations for the past 10, Chef of the Week Royal W. Stanton controls his various choirs with equal precision.

Since first glimpsing the light of day in Santa Mon-ica, Calif., Stanton and his music have traveled handin-hand. Receiving both his bachelor's and master's de-grees at UCLA he accepted his first teaching position at San Luis Obispo, later transferring to Pomona, . . . .

A NATURAL in that field, he couldn't even re-frain from teaching while he fought the battle of World War II in the Army, Stationed on the very tip of the Alcutian Islands, he conducted a school during his off hours. He came to Long Beach in 1946, taught for four years at Poly High hefore moving to City Col-

Stanton's duties there are varied. He is director of the Long Beach Schola Cantorum, a symphonic choir of 150 voices founded in 1952, and known for its annual performance with the Long Beach Symphony Orchestra and its own regular concert season. He also directs the College Choir and the Mad-known throughout California for their spring tours and appearances

Known to have a tremendous sense of humor, his "conducting" remarks have a profound bearing on his groups, For instance, his "1 admire your ingenuity, but there are only four parts" will promptly bring back the loose ends. And when he says "Make your bath tub sound there, fellows-it gives the impression of a slow gas leak now," really rounds 'em out.

A CHARTER member of the Long Beach Music Council, Stanton is a past state president of the California Jr. College Music Educators and is in demand as director and adjudicator for choral festivals through the state. His own choral compositions and arrangements are published by four of the leading national music publishing houses, and enjoy a wide circu-

One can discern from the above that he has little time for hobbies. His few stolen moments are devoted to woodworking, however, led on by a fascination for the beauties of various hardwoods. He's a joy to the homemaker, very orderly, always hanging up his clothes. Having just parted company with 18 pounds, he can sense a calorie a mile away.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD: My husband and I were utterly devoted. I thought my life had come to an end, too, when he was killed last year in an auto accident.

For months I refused to go out at all, but finally the continuous tears and moans of my mother-inlaw, with whom I had gone to live, were too much for me, and I would go to friends' homes for dinner now and then.

Three months ago at such a dinner I met a young business man who reminded me so much of my husband it hurt. Later that week he called and I had dinner with him alone. Since then I've gone out with him once or twice a week, always to the tune of my mother-in-law's

Now he has asked me to marry him, and I want to accept. My mother-in-law says I should wait at least two years. Why? We love each other. It in no way affects the love I bad for my late husband. Why should I wait?--B. P.

DEAR B. P.:

If you would be helping your late husband by waiting two years, that would be different. But you wouldn't be. You'd only be hurring yourself and the groom-to-be.

One year is considered a standard time to wait in deference to a memory. You have waited your year. I cannot see why you should let the protests of your mother-in-law hold you back now from a future which belongs solely to you.-M. M.

DEAR MRS, MAYFIELD: Is it wrong for a wife to be a few inches taller than her husband? I've been going with a bachelor off and on for five years now -we've known each other since we were childrenand every time we have a date he mentions marriage.

At the same time, another comes up! I'm four inches taller than he is,

Right off, I can think of six couples I know, happy as can be, though the wife is the taller of the two. ## Frances Langford Show Tonight Promises to Be Rollicking Affair

By TERRY VERNON

Frances Langford, sweetheart of American servicemen for whom she has sung on fighting fronts all over the world, will make another of her rare TV appearances tonight.

The petite star will shine on "The Frances Langford Show" an hour-long COLORCAST beginning at 8 p.m. on channel 4.

A ROLLICKING good time is promised by the cast of characters, which will include Johnny Mathis, the Three Stooges, Don Ameche, Mary Costa, Hermione Gingold and Bob Cummings.

Bob Cummings.

Music will be by Ray Heindorf and his orchestra. The Hermes Pan Dancers, Jud Conlon Singers and Jack (Mr. Bongo) Costanzo also will be on hand

As an additional feature in advance of Mothers Day, members of the Motion Picture Mothers Club of Hollywood will be introduced—all mothers of prominent motion picture personalities.

To interject a nostalgic note, Don Ameche and Miss Langford will do one of their famous "Bickersons" sketches, so popular with radio audiences back in the mid-'40s. The Bickersons, Blanche and John, were a married pair whose hilarious bickering always led to the pay-off line: "You say it, but you don't do it?"

Sounds like good entertainment for the whole family.

Long Beach Boy Totes the Mail

By TED KREC

Every time Brett Clark goes for his gun or outwits the scoundrels on "Pony Express," a lot of Long Beach people stand up and cheer because Brett Clark really is Grant Sullivan, popular local actor with a string of credits as long as your arm.

If the name Grant Sullivan doesn't mean anything to you, try Jerry Schulz, because that's how he was known here.

The son of Mrs. Gladys Schulz, 731½ E. Broadway, Jerry took the name Grant Sullivan when he began to click on the New York stage.

SULLIVAN WAS born June 30, 1924, in Fremont, Neb., but because his family moved to California when he was just a boy, he always has considered himself a Californian.

At Anaheim Union High School he became a football and baseball star, but the call of the greasepaint was strong, and even in high school he starred in plays, winning accolades for his performances.

The family came to Long Beach in 1942, and the young actor was playing a different role—he was a Navy meteorologist. For a while he was stationed at Los Alamitos, then went to Hutchinson, Kan., and eventually to Alaska and the Aleutians where he saw most of his wartime

Around Long Beach he worked as a telephone lineman and in various men's clothing stores; but then, in 1947, he went to New York to try the "big time."

He was gone a year and

He was gone a year and then returned, resuming his former local endeavors—hut some people are just born for the theater. So, in 1950 back he went to New York and he didn't come home again until 1958

His first professional appearance was with the late Edward Arnold in 1950. Since then he has appeared in shows too numerous to mention, but some of the stars with whom he has worked are Grace Kelly, Itona Massey, Joan Blondell, Jennifer Jones and Rosalind Russell he had a featured role in "Auntie Mame."

His first TV appearance was in 1951 when he played in "The Floyd Collins Story." Since then he has had more than 200 TV credits, including some with Orson Welles and Clare Luce and such shows as "Markham" and "77 Sunset Strip."

IN CALIFORNIA National Productions' teleseries, "Pony Express," seen every Wednesday at 7 p.m. on channel 11, he plays division agent Brett Clark, a two-fisted man of action—but not a superman. The story clings to realism.

Now a resident of Hollywood, Sullivan visits Long, Beach often—and if you see him on the street, you'il know him; he's 6-feet-2, 190 pounds, with blue-gray eyes and dark blond hair and he's every bit the outdoor enthusiast he appears!

Plans Big Ones

Producer-Director George Schaefer, who is planning a two-hour production of "Mac-Beth" for next season, also wants to do a two-hour version of "Showboat." The "Hallmark Hall of Fame" musical presentation on NBC-TV would star Joe E. Brown, Julie Wilson and Gypsy Rose Lee.

Ghetto Teleplay

"In the Presence of Mine Enemies," Rod Serling's teleplay about survival in the Warsaw ghetto during World War II, is scheduled for May 18 on CBS-TV.

Summer Tour "

TV western star Guy Madison will star in "Dark at the Top of the Stairs" on an eight-week summer theater tour through the East and Midwest starting June 20.

Signs New Pact "

Bob Hope has signed a new five-year exclusive agreement with NBC for his special television shows. The net-work is half-owner in Bob Hope Enterprises.

STEVE ALLEN LOSES NO TIME

Steve Allen Works Even While Driving Freeways

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (A)-Motorists on the Hollywood Freeway often are startled to see Steve Allen drive by talking to himself.

He has not flipped.

Allen, TV star, movie actor, songwriter, short story author, magazine writer, recording pianist, UCLA student and staunch opponent of nuclear bomb testing, is a very busy

"I LIVE OUT in Sherman Oaks," he explains, "and it takes me 20 minutes to drive in to Hollywood, so I just rigged up a little recorder to use in the car. Whenever I get an idea, I put it down."

Several times Allen has composed songs while driving along the freeway. He be-lieves it's more relaxing than cussing the inevitable traffic jams.

The real Steve Allen is a serious, hard-working fellow. He is co-chairman of the Hollywood Committee for SANE, a group that campaigns actively against the testing of atomic and hydrogen bombs. Among its sponsors are such stars as Marilyn Monroe and Marlon Brando.

AT UCLA, he attends classes where the great works of mankind are discussed. He's an intellectual without being stuffy about it.

He's a pretty good comedian, too, but modestly ex-plains his long tenure on TV:

"I usually let the others on the show be funnier than I. That way the audience is not apt to tire of you so quickly,"

Ol' Ted's Corner

I am no avowed enemy of television commercials-in fact, I think some of them are better than the programs!

But I have a mental block against seeing sponsors doing their own commercials. These people might be rich, but in many cases they're darn near illiterate.

"To each his own," I always sny-and what these merchants hope to gain by doing their own ads, I can't imagine. It would leave a much better taste in the public's mouth if the messages were delivered by sauve and polished announcers.

And while they're all pretty friendly on TV, I wonder what they're REALLY like? Maybe I sould visit one of these firms sometime, ask for the boss and find out

The World's Gentlest Monster

By DOC QUIGG

NEW YORK (UPI) - William Henry Pratt, a distin-guished Englishman who was born in a charmingly antique London suburb called Dulwich, and pronounced Dullitch, is a cultured lover of flowers, poetry, cricket and Conrad. He's also the world's No. 1 monster.

And its gentlest and softest-spoken one. His stage name is Boris Karloff, His face is so famous that he regularly is called upon to play — in the everlasting "Arsenic and Old Lace" — the part of a murderer who is sensitive about people telling him he looks like Boris Karloff.

ALTHOUGH Karloff has acted in more than 100 movies since he first went to Hollywood in 1919, he remains monstrously identified in the international public mind with Frankenstein's celebrated do-it-yourself assembly job. He's not bitter about this. After all:

"I'm extremely grateful to Frankenstein. The monster is my best friend, for goodness sake. He set my feet on the road to recognition.
"I wouldn't mind playing him again if he hadn't been debauched through cheap, vulgar sensationalism -- by movies featuring horror for the sake of horror. It's in terribly bad taste. I don't want to have anything to do with

IT WASN'T until 1931 that, as Karloff says, "the lightning struck for me" and he monsterized the first Frankenstein picture. He was hailed as the films' greatest character actor since Lon Chaney. He did two more, bowing out after "The Bride of Frankenstein" in 1935, when "I saw the handwriting on the wall and decided I wouldn't do the part anymore."

Karloff's home is in London, but his is a much-seen face on American television, courtesy of the jet plane. London, he says, is only "home base." For instance, he left there with his wife last Jan. 2, played a week in "Arsenic and Old Lace" on a San Juan, Puerto Rico, stage, and has been busy with American TV ever since.

BUT HE'S due home Monday-wants to get back for the cricket season. He was caught here for an interview while rehearsing for the taping of "The Secret World of Eddie Hodges," an hour-long special on CBS-TV which will reach the home screens June 23.

Karloff has been on sort of a pirate kick lately, and it's a pirate he'll be portray-ing in Master Hodges' dream world-a recreation of his classic Captain Hook role in Peter Pan. Others who will people Hodges' dreams on the program include Bert Luhr, Jackie Gleason, Janis Paige and Hugh O'Brian.

'Pay TV' Is Rearing Its Head Again

By LEROY POPE

NEW YORK (UPI)-If "pay. television" should go over big in tests planned for Hartford, Conn., and Oklahoma City later this year, there may be real trembling in the offices of the broadcasting companies.

Sources say the networks are worried that advertisers ultimately might switch to "pay TV" should the tests in the United States be as successful as a current test in Toronto.

So far "pay TV" promoters have not announced plans to go after commercials.

A MAJOR selling point for the new system has been the supposition that its operators would present material based solely on quality, not on what sponsors think would sell their products. Most other media will not accept advertising if the advertisers attempt to interfere with edi-torial content, with advertising not tied to editorial content on "pay TV its promoters then might be in the position of paying for programs from subscriber fees and getting extra profit from advertisers who had nothing to do with the programs.

Should the public go along

"Pay TV" tests several years ago laid an egg. However, the promoters claim they have better systems worked out for arranging payment, and in the meanwhile the television market has seen spectacular growth.

Candidates Will Get Time on TV

NEW YORK (UPI) - The National Broadcasting Co. will give the Democratic and Republican Presidential candidates an opportunity to appear side by side on nationwide television broadcasts on on six Saturday nights before election day, NBC board chairman Robert W. Sarnoff has announced, Sarnoff said one similar Saturday night period will be offered to the vice presi-dential candidates and another to Presidential candidates of the minor parties.

THE PLAN will avoid the necessity of giving equal time to all minor party candidates, Sarnoff said, because all candidates will be present-ed on an expanded and re-scheduled "Meet the Press" program. Appearance of candidates on regularly sched-uled news interview pro-grams was exempted by Congress last year from the equal-time provisions of the Communications Act.

OUR COVER

Too many "Do-It-Yourselfers" are just "Beautiful Dreamers," and so with Jean Durant and Fred Harbeston when assigned to draft Southland's cover on a dreamy spring day. Together they dreamed a dream of what could be done with a typicat (well, not quite) house . remove shutters . . . tidy up lawn . . . convert garage into playroom . . . remove garage to other end of house . . , install a pool ... corner fireplace of stone ... put in ... o-o-oh a-a-ah! (yawn). And then they went across the street and had a cup of coffee! But they left their dream on the drawing board—today's cover. For more ambitious Do-It-Yourselfers, however, Southland today offers many ideas on how to improve the old homestead.

Far back beyond a modern grandfather's ken, there originated a strange little cableway that climbed slowly up and down, up and down, day after day, a nearprecipice that tumbled down a height into the busy streets of Los Angeles. Today, Angel's Flight is still "flying." For what it is, how it began and how its wings may be clipped see next week's Southland Magazine.

NAME MEANS

DEAR MISS RULE: Please give genealogy on ROY.

—Mrs. C.C., Long Beach,

C.C.: ROY may be either Scotch, English, Irish or French. The Scotch and Irish elan MacGiollaRuaidh or "Sons of the Red-haired Youth," modernized their Gaelic name to Macliroy and MacElroy, which was then shortened by some progeny to Roy. In medieval England and France "Roy" symbolized "King," and after yearly usage by townsmen who enacted the part of a king in a pageant, was assumed as a surname. Cambridgeshire records of 1273 list Simon Roy. The French Roy or Le Roy coat-of-arms has a red chevron below three black heraldic birds and above a black lion, on a silver shield. The Scotch Roy shield is blue with a silver border decorated with eight red coins. In the center is a silver rampant lion. The Roy motto "Qua tendis" means "Wherever you

DEAR MISS RULE: Would like to know about BLACK-MORE and BLACK MAR. Richard Black more from Somerset, England, author of Lorna Doone, was a relative.—G.S., Seal Beach, W.H., Hawaiian Gardens.

G.S., W.H.: BLACKMORE and BLACKMAR are from an early English place phrase "Blacc-Mor," meaning "black moor," Rich black soil of a pasture area was typified in this land description. William de Blackomor of Norwich in 1381 was one of the family primogenitors. The Blackmore coat-of-arms from Devon has three silver crescents between three black Arab Moor heads on a band across a gold shield. James Blackmore, also known as James Blackmar, was a New England settler in the 1600s.

DEAR MISS RULE: Have you the origin of CAMPBELL.

---Mrs. J.B., Bell. J.B.: CAMPBELL, a great Highland Scotch clan, was first recorded in the 1200s. Campbell, deciphered from ancient Gaelic, meant "crooked mouth." recording for later descendants the first Campbell's facial characteristic. For centuries this family was political and military foe of the MacDonalds. The Campbells of Argyllshire claim direct descendancy from the clan founder, who was created Lord of Lochow in 1280. Campbell chiefs held the office of Great Master of the King's Household for generations. A Campbell chieftain commanded Mary Queen of Scots' army at the Battle of Langside in 1568. The clan coat-of-arms has eight alternating black and gold triangles covering the shield, their points meeting in the center, with the motto (Continued on Page 42)

Trend Swings to Enlarged Homes

By Herb Shannon

ADDING A ROOM or two to the family homestead now is as commonplace in the Long Beach area as a minor fence repair job was a few years ago.

Maturing of local residential areas is the principal cause of this phenomenon of the construction industry, but it is also a reflection of increased incomes and higher standards of living, according to those in the growing business of catering to rebuilding needs.

"Almost half of the homes on every block in some local areas already have been remodeled," a prominent local contractor pointed out last week, "Most of the other half will be remodeled within the next five years."

Most of the houses undergoing enlargement or modernization were originally built and purchased 10 to 15 years ago when the buyer's family was small, the contractor explained.

"NOW THE OWNER finds his family has outgrown the original two or three bedrooms, and at the same time now can afford what he once would have regarded as a luxury," he said. "But after pricing new homes, he often comes to the conclusion that it is easier and better to add on to the place he owns."

The decision to enlarge rather than move offers many advantages, according to experts. In addition to savings in over-all cost, it enables the family to remain in the familiar school area and within the circle of old friends and neighbors.

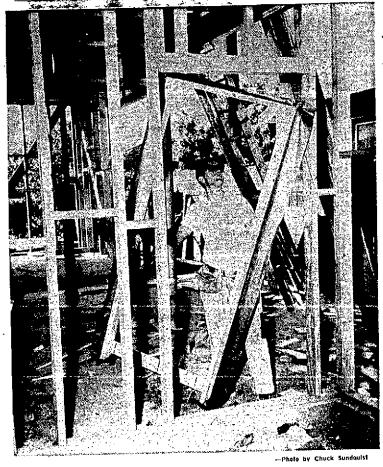

Another reason for the popularity of remodeling is the ease with which arrangements can be made for all or any part of a construction job. Those who specialize in this field offer a wide choice of services and package plans for the prospective home modernizer.

TYPICAL IS the contractor who will do the specified job completely, from helping design the proposed addition to drawing up the plans, clearing code permits, doing the work and even providing financing.

The same builder will stop short at any point of the construction to permit the handyman owner to complete the job if he wishes, thus climinating finishing costs. Many of the current remodeling jobs are mere shells erected by commercial builders, to be finished off on the do-it-yourself principle.

Family rooms are the most desired of current addition projects in the local area, contractors report. Next most numerous is the bedroom and bath addition, closely followed by the single bathroom addition and then the kitchen remodeling project.

COSTS OF ENLARGING a home vary according to the situation, but contractors estimate that a family room can be added for a cost of less than $10 a square foot on the average. This compares favorably with new construction and can be considerably reduced if the owner wishes to do part of the work himself.

Various forms of financing are available through local builders. Many favor the FHA guaranteed Title I loans averaging a little over 5 per cent on a discounted basis.

Many Southland homeowners have found that they can add to the useful living areas of their houses without physically enlarging the structures. This, of course, means taking advantage of outdoor facilities.

Patio construction again reflects the maturing process in local neighberhoods. Firms which once depended chiefly on fencing now have turned almost exclusively to garden beautification.

TODAY THE ONLY significant activity in fencing in this area is the decorative screen type, made possible by new lightweight concrete blocks of patterns never before available.

Physically fit, mentally alert and attempting to better themselves, men of Pilot Rock, new conservation camp near Crestline, work on fire trail.

By Aubrey B. Haines

WHAT FRIENDSHIP means and how far a person should go in being a friend were discussed recently by a number of men. The discussion was part of an idea of rehabilitation in penology and is known as the "therapeutic community" concept. The participants were 104 men stationed at Pilot Rock, the new $306,000 conservation camp in a wooded canyon six miles north of Crestline, operated jointly by the California Department of Corrections and the California Division of Forestry.

gram," says Floyd A. Chamlee, correctional lieutenant in charge of the new venture. "In these sessions the men air their feelings about daily frictions, then discuss the reasons causing them to react against rules of society and their being sent to us."

Not just anyone is permitted to engage in the camp rehabilitation project.

"The men are screened by a classification committee," says John T. Breen, correctional captain in charge of conservation camps for the California Institution for Men. "A man must first be a safe custody risk. We must be fairly certain that he won't run away. He must be physically fit to perform fireline duties. Most of all, he must show evidence of wanting to change — morally a n d spiritually — from the kind of life that put him here."

AFTER BEING interviewed and passing intelligence and maturity tests, a man is referred to the classification committee for further tests, which determine his fitness for Pilot Rock. "We refer to our charges not as prisoners or inmates but as men," says Robert L. Eklund, associate superintendent-custody of the California Institution for Men and division head of the conservation camps. "Prior to arriving at Pilot Rock, the men are given attitude and personality tests to determine how they feel about authority, about their relations with people, about their former environment. Then they are given training in forestry work, which includes fire prevention, fire control, and building fire trails. Before undertaking fire fighting, they must be conditioned for working in the mountains. They are trained physically like an athlete so that they can climb mountains rapidly."

"Camp fire-fighting crews are rated among the most effective forest fire fighters in the nation," says Capt.

Therapeutic community living was first put into operation by Dr. Maxwell Jones in England's Belmont Hospital. Dennie Briggs, consultant for the camp, has studied the method with Dr. Jones in England. Out of such earlier efforts in mental hospital settings the application to adult penology developed. The men are given regular interviews and tests to determine their progress in inter-personal relationships and rehabilitation. Once a man finds why he went wrong, he may be well on his way once again to becoming a useful citizen.

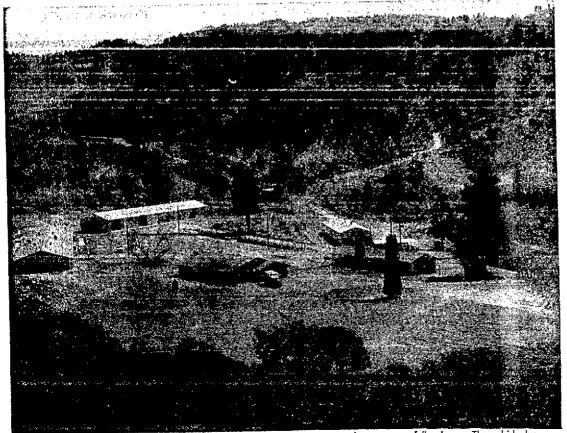

THE CAMPS HELP get rid of idleness in prisons by providing productive employment for the men. They learn good work habits and certain skills they otherwise would not develop. Thus the cost of operating prisons is cut down, and men are better prepared for their release. It is the belief of the California Department of Corrections that a man has a better chance of gaining this preparation away from the prison setting.

Very few escapes are attempted,

Very few escapes are attempted, even though security is at a minimum in camp. The men know that if they try to escape, they would be given a long sentence on being captured and never again have a chance at another camp program. The men at Pilot Rock are mostly in prison for the first time, are under 40, are physically fit, and are bent on self-improvement.

When not in one of the counseling programs or working from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m. six days a week in the forest, they have available a complete recreation program and have religious services on Sundays. Furthermore, canvas and upholstery shops, operated by the Division of Forestry, enable them to learn a trade that would be useful to them on being released.

It is planned that the new living community program will also be instituted at a conservation camp to be located on the grounds of the California Institution for Men at Chino. Crews assigned to it will work on forestry projects within a 50-mile radius.

Minimum security features Pilot Rock Camp. Men selected to serve there are carefully chosen. They abide by rules, knowing that escape and recapture would mean long sentences, no further opportunity for the camps.

The Hawks That Play by Night

By R. Winston Tucker

LONG BEACH NITEHAWK amateur softball team holds the enviable record of having won five world championships in succession, a feat which has never been equalled or surpassed by any major softball or baseball team. During this period the 'Hawks have also monopolized the All-American selections. Since 1950, when the International can selections. Since 1950, when the International Softball Congress was organized, these representatives of Long Beach have wen the championship six times—first in 1953, then in 1955 through 1959. What makes this team "click"?

Cleo Goyette, the 'Hawks' All-American second basenian, has the answer—unity plus capable managership. Visualize a combination of skilled athletes who have worked together harmoniously for many seasons. Add to this the "know-how" coaching of an experienced manager and you have a picture of the Nitchawks.

The majority of the team members have played together for seven years or longer. Jimmy Jones, shortstop and dean of the Nitehawks, played his shortstop and dean of the Nitchawks, played his first game under manager Joe Rodgers in 1942. Clint Herron, third baseman, and Stan White, catcher, joined in 1946. Larry Silvas, first baseman; Goyette; Ted Herder, left fielder: Paul (Lucky) Humiston, center fielder; and Cy Phelps, right fielder, joined the club in the 1950s.

GOOD-NATURED "Red" Meairs, relief catcher and often referred to as "Handy Andy," became a member in 1953. He has played almost every pomember in 1953. He has played almost every position on the team. If an emergency arises and a substitution is necessary, Joe sends "Red" in and knows the job will be well done. Jack Randall and Leroy Zimmerman became affiliated with the 'Hawks in 1949 and 1955, respectively. They are considered the two top pitchers in the ISC and have All-American awards to prove it. Jack was named the best pitcher in the 1958 world tournament and Leroy received this distinction in 1959. Fans may remember Zimmerman when he played pro football for the Philadelphia Eagles. He

JACK RANDALL was first introduced to soft-ball while attending William Cullen Bryant Ele-mentary School in Long Beach. It has always been his favorite sport. His interest increased when he discovered that he had natural ability as a pitcher. He has played this position on various local soft-

Rodgers has a tremendous desire to win. He is convinced that his team is superior. This feeling is so realistic that it is felt by the players and stimulates confidence. He desires that his team set the best example possible for young athletes. A most unusual arrangement exists between Joe and the players that have been with him for some time: When a member feels that his presence is hurting the team, he will tell Joe; a change of some sort will then be worked out by mutual consent.

How to Make an Oriental Tea Table 🖁

By John Camden

WHEN MY WIFE mentioned that we needed a coffee table for our new rumpus room, I remembered an old high-legged table that had stood in the garage corner for months.

"I'll make us a coffee tabl," I told her, "And we can buy refreshments for our rumpus room initiation with the money we save."

Realizing that many men before me had run into problems when they undertook such projects (such as sawing legs too short or lopsided), I went about the thing systematically.

Carefully, I measured the legs of our living room coffee table and marked the legs of the table accordingly, 151/2 inches down from under the table top.

AFTER SAWING off three legs I stopped for a quick snack and cold drink and admired my handiwork thus far. It was so simple, I thought, even my wife could do it.

Resuming work, I sawed off the fourth leg. To my amazement, when I set the table upright one leg was shorter than the other three. Figuring that someone had played a little trick with my markings while I was eating, I decided to cut off the other three legs to match the short one and no one would really know the difference.

I sawed two of them down after marking them to the fraction of an inch to match the short one, and then it happened.

The fourth one fell off the table all by itself.

I pondered the situation.

An idea hit me and I went into the house and brought out a pillow and teacup and saucer. Then I called my wife outside.

"LOOK, HONEY," I said, sitting on a pillow in front of the table top placed squarely on the porch floor. "I've made the perfect Oriental tea table at no cost whatever."

She patted me on the head and handed me a package.

"Wrought iron legs just the right height for a coffee ta-ble," she explained. "I went over and bought them while you were eating lunch—just in case."

"Now all you do . . ." she went on.

"I know what to do," I said.

Sometimes women have no respect for a man's intelligence.

. When I sel the table down, one leg was too short . . . "

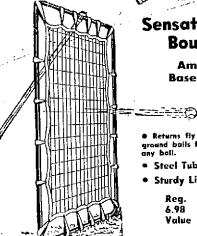

And then it happened . . . the fourth leg fell off . . .

"Look, honey, an Oriental tea table . . . at no cost whatever!"

SOUTHLAND HOMES

Tribute to Fine Architecture

With the living area two stories high, this award-winning home, the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Richard D. Opdahl, obtains spaciousness belied by its 30x80-foot site.

TOROBABLY FEW homes in the United States have received as many honors and awards, architecturally speaking, as that belonging to Mr. and Mrs. Richard D. Opdahl, 5576 Vesuvian Walk in Naples.

Architects Killingsworth, Brady and Smith designed the home which is an outstanding example of fine architecture from every point of view. Awards which the home has received so far are as follows:

(1) First Honor Award, 1960 AIA (American Insti-tute of Architects) Honor Awards Program. One of the five best buildings in the United States in 1960. Award presented April 21 in San Francisco at AIA convention.

(2) Award of Merit, 1960 Homes for Better Living Competition sponsored by "Life," "House and Home and AIA," The building was selected as one of the cleven best homes in the United States, Award presented April 21 at San Francisco convention of AIA.

(3) Home plans exhibited at the Gold Medal Exhibi-tion of the Architectural League of New York.

(4) First Honor Award, 1958. One of top five in the Western States, AIA, Sunset Magazine Honor Award.
(5) In the latter part of 1957 it was selected by the Southern California Chapter of AIA as one of the five best buildings in Southern California.

The most fantastic thing about this exceptionally beautiful home is the fact that it was built on a lot measuring 30x80 feet. Privacy for the home was achieved by erecting a redwood wall 18 feet high along either side. There is a tremendous feeling of spaciousness in the home which has been developed between the high walls, partly due to the fact that the living area is two stories high.

The living area is set back

By setting the living area back 41 feet from the properly line, provision was made for carport, patio, entry, pool

Furnishings in the home are modern and simple, with only essentials used. Again, this adds up to a feeling of space and elegance. High walls provide for privacy.

42 feet from the property line to make room for a carport, entrance garden, patio and reflecting pool. White concrete stepping stones lead over the pool when approaching the entrance to the house. The patio of the home seems to be a part of the home itself, and unifies the home and lot as one.

EVERYTHING ABOUT the home is unusual. The lower level is a single open space, with a single partition separating the living and dining areas. The dining area looks ing room with translucent drapes suspended from a ceiling rack, providing privacy as well as luxury.

Colors in the home are keyed to the eucalyptus gold stain of the redwood side walls with dominance of white and accents of orange and yellow. Furnishings are modern and simple, with only essentials used. Again, this adds to the feeling of space and elegance.

THE STRUCTURE was designed to support the future addition of a master bedroom suite over the carport and entrance garden. Access will be from a stairway localed at the platform in the reflecting pool. At the present time the area of the house is 1,344 square feet.

Truly, this is a home of magnificence, recognized as such by architects all over the country. Long Beach is proud to claim this much-honored home as its own. From both the practical and esthetic points of view, the architects achieved perfection.

Decorative in quality, the stairway occupies small space.

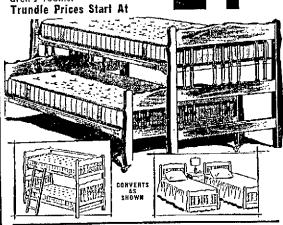

Master bedroom suite can be added over carport later.

Split-Level Potential at Best

By David L. Bowen

WHICH OF these features are you looking for in a house plan— Dramatic living room arranged for gracious entertain-

Careful attention to the connection of outdoor and indoor living areas?

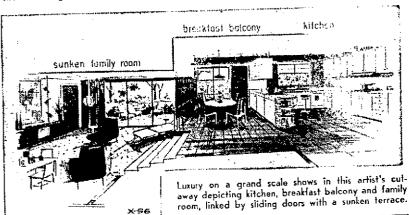

Clearcut separation of formal and informal sections?

Original economy and easy maintenance?

All of these clements of good modern design, and others, are present in House of the Week X-96, a split-level gem created by Architect Rudolph A. Matern.

THERE ARE four bedrooms on the sleeping level plus another small room on the ground level that could be used as a fifth bedroom. There's a big reception foyer, a family room that flows without interruption through sliding glass doors to a sunken terrace garden, a breakfast balcony overlooking the family room, a lovely large fireplace and bow window in the living room, efficient Ushaped kitchen layout, a short but glamorous bedroom balcony, and 21/2 bathrooms.

All of these aids to peace of mind and modern living come in a design covering 1,727 square feet of space of living and bedroom levels, plus 511 on the ground level. Thanks to the inherent economy of split 'evel design, this ground level living space—plus the two-car garagecomes at only half the normal building cost.

THE EASIEST way to picture this economy feature of the split-level is to think of a long ranch house built over a basement. Now think of this same ranch split in the center with the left half raised so that the basement floor of the raised half is even with the ground. Total roof area is the same, perimeter walls are the same, yet you have increased the usable space by half. Basically, this is the great merit of the split. Often the advantage of this bonus space is frittered away by the use of small windows and design treatment which seems to forget the grade level is no longer basement, but the advantage is there none-

Principle device used to fully develop the split potential in X-96 was locating the entrance on the ground level. This allows more space for the living room, gives the living room more separation, and at the same time aids circulation by providing a direct route from front door to fumily room and kitchen.

Over-all dimensions of X-96 are 59' 5" in width by 29' 10" in depth. The exterior is a pleasing combination of natural stone and stained cedar shingles.

EXTRA ATTENTION was lavished on the front entrance of this design to give it a stately appearance. The doustately appearance. ble front doors are framed by brick columns on either side, and an open trellis overhead.

A sloping lot is not a requirement for full exploita-tion of X-96. The home could be worked into level terrain by simple use of the fill obtained in excavation for the small basement section and the sunken rear garden.

Another advantage of the grade level entrance is the fact that mud tracked in from the outside can be localized in the foyer, which has an easily cleaned slate in-concrete. From the foyer, swing-ing doors lead to the family room and kitchen and a short curving stairway leads to the living room.

Bedrooms are eight steps up from the living level, providing adequate separation without demanding a long stair climb. The master bedroom is a generous 17x13 feet, with walk-in closet and private bath. The other three bedrooms are in a line across the front. Efficient grouping keeps hall space at a mini-

Plans call for a basement the size of the living level. This is roughly half the roofed area of the house and sufficent for furnace and storage without the waste basement space frequently found in large ranch homes.

JUST AS SURE as defiodils open their faces to the sun in spring, homemakers become resiless after a long winter and the urge for house cleaning is rampant. Husbands come home from work unable to find favorite chairs. Dinner is likely to be a bowl of soup served in the a bowl of soup seventhal windows without curtains or draperies look like great dark holes in the walls, and the annual binge of cleaning and "fixingis under way.

More likely than not this yearly spree will involve some redecorating as well as cleaning. Whether the job is one of major refurbishing, to be done professionally or via the do-it-yourself method, or whether it involves a few touches here and there to achieve a new color effect, latex paints provide an inexpensive and practical approach to the problem.

Latex paints have a number of advantages for both the professional and the amateur. They dry quickly with practically no odor, making it possible to use the room the same day. They are easy to handle with either brush or roller. For the amateur who finds it difficult not to spill a few drops, these paint spots are easily removed with a damp cloth. Brushes and rollers are readily cleaned with warm water and detergent. These new paints do not have a shiny finish, but they are durable and be washed readily.

FOR THE HOME decorator who wants to be daring with wall colors this spring, the sky is the limit. Leading prolessional decorators are pointing the way by execut-ing rooms around walls paint-ed in such off-beat colors as mustard, putty, khaki and saffron; offering a pleasant change in the gold color family. All shades from terra ily. All shades from terra cotta to raspberry have been borrowed freely from the red palette for wall colors. Most significant of all, particularly for bedrooms, is a revival of the mauve decade. Shades of mauve, lavender, lilac and mauve, lavender, lilae and related pinks and blues are not only new for wall colors, but for floor coverings and decorative fabrics as well.

Plain colored walls offer the opportunity to be hold in the use of many beautifully designed new fabrics for wintreatments, upholstery and slip covers, as well as floor coverings, nldeed, pat-tern and design seem to be moving from the walls to the

Color Cues the Home Revolution

Home interiors are in the midst of a color revolutiona fact that will be apparent in this Spring's home improvement efforts.

Kitchens and bathrooms are saying good-bye to the "anti-septic look." Instead, there are colored appliances, warm paneling and cabinets, and cheerful wallpaper and floor coverings.

Through the rest of the house, colorful fabrics and plastics, and greater use of pigmented woods are taking the drab look and the cold look out of everyday living.

Color phones are now available in nine shades—white, pink, light gray, light beige, light blue, ivory, yellow, moss green, and cherry red.

HOME IMPROVEMENT

Evolution of a Rumpus Room

THE DINETTE which was once in the home of Dr. and Mrs. Robert W. Godwin, 5500 El Parque, was excellent for the purpose for which it was intended. However, when plans for a family-rumpus room were considered and brought to the attention of Architect Richard Poper, it was felt that the dinette area which was adjacent to the kitchen and accessible to the patio was a highly desirable location for such

Consequently, the entire end wall of the dinette was torn down and the room extended to a usable rumpus room size. A corner brick fireplace was built, giving warmth and coziness to the new large

Careful selection of furnishings provided a dual usefulness to the room. A large sectional couch now curves comfortably around the fireplace for everyday family fun. When the room is to be used as a dining room, the couch is placed flat against a wall and the dining table extended to the desired length. Sliding glass doors to the patio give the room the classic indoor-outdoor-living charm.

OMEMADE canvas weather shields offer a fine project for the do-it-yourself fan. It's not too difficult and the result benefits the whole family. In addition, Dad can call on Mom for help-especially with the cutting and sewing.

Rugged and practical canvas is gaining new fame for color and style and for its up-to-date solutions to some familiar problems of modern housing. If you think of canvas primarily as awning material, you're underrating the versatility of this old stand-by which can be used for a variety of weather shields.

One type, illustrated, is a shield made of 12 ounce duck tied to aluminum pipes for either wind or sun protection.

Using a color to your choosing, perhaps to harmonize with awnings or exterior house colors, is both a decorative and a gay identification of the corner where children can play safely or where adults may relax in comfort.

THE CANVAS is lashed to an aluminum frame. The frame pivots on a pipe, set in a flange, to adjust to the sun's rays. As a screen or decorative "fence" for a larger area, a series of frames could be used.

Two new processing developments are responsible for the new canvas' beauty and added durability.

One is the use of acrylic paints or resin emulsions which adhere to textile fibers and form a permanently flexpink, gray and aqua.

THE OTHER development is vinyl coating the canvas. This gives a brilliantly colored, flexible (abric with a smooth and easily washed surface that has excellent sunfastness and water resistance.

Almost all of today's canvas is treated to be extremely resistant to mildew and the canvases boast ible film. With these resins brighter and more distinctive colors are possible. Also they are superior in color fastness in sunlight. You'll see many handsome striped effects combining, for example, bright blues yellows and greens or sistance to salt sprays and corrosive atmospheres.

9-BY-12 WOVEN carpet for less than $20? Why, I thought that went out with 30-cent-a-pound steak!"

It's true, ma'am. You can get one of the newer types of fiber rugs, in the 9-foot x 12-foot size, for just under $20 —slightly higher in certain sections of the South and Southwest. This makes fiber rugs the lowest in cost of all domestic woven carpet.

In addition to its low price, which alone is enough to soothe any troubled budget, fiber carpeting offers three special advantages:

- 1. Durability the great strength of twisted kraft fibers, a wood-fiber product, makes these rugs last like a shepherd dog's patience.
- 2. Reversibility-most fiber rug patterns are duplicated on the flip-over side of the rug. When one side becomes soiled, the rug can be reversed for extended beauty and longer life.
- 3,-Style-fiber rugs come in a variety of patterns and colors. Some of the weaves are subtle and quiet, like tweed. Others are bold and colorful, like a highland plaid.

One of the leading manufacturers of fiber rugs, Deltox, makes them in all standard sizes, from 27x54 inches up to 15x18 feet. Some patterns are available in ovalshaped rugs; these harmonize particularly well with group-ings of Early American furniture or antiques. For wall-towall effects, most patterns also come in special sizes, in lengths up to 50 feet. The special sizes can be made to fit even rooms of unusual size and shape.

FIBER RUGS and carpet feature a napless weave. There's no deep pile to catch

To keep a fiber rug looking clean and bright, daily vacuuming is all that's needed. More thorough cleanings can be done right in the home, by shampooing the rug with the suds of a soapless deter-

Padding isn't required for fiber rugs, but it can be used if extra softness is desired.

A Chaise for Your Patio Comfort

NOW IS THE TIME to get our restin' furniture ready for the lazy days that lie ahead. The outdoor chaise pictured with this article and NBC's television actress Barbara English just can't be beat for solid comfort.

The back is adjustable. You may raise it for reading, sun-bathing or visiting. You lower it to a flat position when you want to snooze. The wheels make it easy to move and because it's put together with screws and bolts rather than nails, it will last for many, many years.

Even if you are an inexperienced amateur, you can build this chaise. It's easy when you use the full size pattern. Just trace the pattern on wood, saw out the parts and put them together. The pattern shows exactly how and gives you a list of the necessary materials. Lots of pictures and easy-to-read directions are printed on each pattern to help you.

To obtain the full-size outdoor chaise pattern No. 174 send 75 cents in coin to Steve Ellingson, Long Beach Independent, Press-Telegram Pattern Dept., 15155 Saticoy St., Van Nuys, Calif.

Fiberglas Covers Their Patio

ALTERNATING strips of green and white insulating fiberglass cover the attractive patio of Dr. and Mrs. Dan Langston, 5741 23rd St. The structure is 12 by 26 feet, and 13 sheets of fiberglass, each 2 by 12 feet, were used.

Outer support is an open, laminated, cantilever - type beam, which reduces the beavy appearance or the need for frequent supporting pillars.

All green fiberglass makes patio-ites look like the popular concept of Martians and all white admits too much glaring light. Hence, Dr. Langston used the pleasing and restful green and white combination.

-STELLA GEORGE

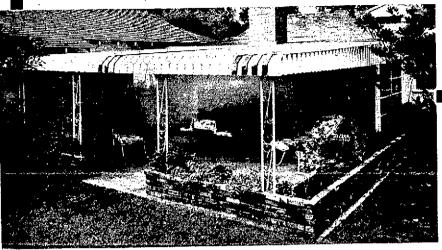

Alternating panels of green and white fiberglass avoid too much glare and the Martian green look in this happy patio.

For Moderns: Happy Kitchens

More than just a work area, this cheerful kitchen is a versatile "base of operations" for a modern homemaker. Featured in color is a new wood-grained paneling.

TIRED OF the same old kitchen?

Many homemakers, realizing that they spend the majority of their time there, are taking steps to make their kitchens pleasant and comfortable rooms to relax and entertain friends in addition to being efficient places to prepare meals.

Architects and builders currently are incorporating many design features, formerly used only in informaliving areas, into modern kitchens to develop a new "personality" for this all-purpose room. Wood grain paneling, desk and telephone, television, comfortable chairs, and even a cheerful fireplace, now are found in kitchens.

To emphasize this trend in kitchens, many interesting decors can be planned to complement the furnishings and appliances. Paneling in a wide range of colors and patterns makes it easy to create a distinctive and practial decor.

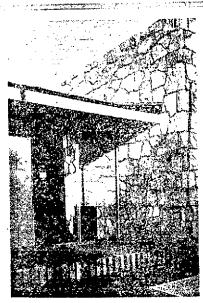

Woodgrain paneling is especially popular because it can be used in modern treatments or to accent an Early American or Colonial theme. Ideal for kitchens where heat and moisture are a problem is Marlite Random Plank, a plastic-surfaced hardboard that can be damp-wiped clean. Like the surface of a range or refrigerator, the baked plastic surface resists dirt, grease and stains.

WOODGRAIN of the paneling is an effective background for almost any type decor, and its warm tones help crate an informal atmosphere. Random-width grooves give Marlite planks, which can be used over studs in new construction or furring strips in remodeling, a distinctive vertical line treatment. The planks never require refinishing.

Stone Adapts Itself to Good Design

Dramatic fireplace of Palos Verdes stone, a natural product of the Palos Verdes Peninsula, continues here outside the house to form chimney and planter-divider, proving that good design can be helped by the versatility of stone. Six different types of stone—Mossback, Golden, Oatmeal, Plaster Rock, Ornamental and Specimen—are found on the peninsula and all are in demand throughout the United States.

Fruitwood paneling adds depth and size to this room and forms an attractive back-ground for decorative art work. This touch adds depth, color and interest to room.

Cupboards Improved

SIZE AND BEAUTY were added to their kitchendinette area by Mr. and Mrs. James Slaughter, 4328 Albury Ave., by removing a wall be-tween the two sections and installing a curved Formica bar for a separation.

With a kitchen thus on display, some redecorating becomes necessary. Painted cupboards, for example, should be replaced with natural wood or something just as attractive.

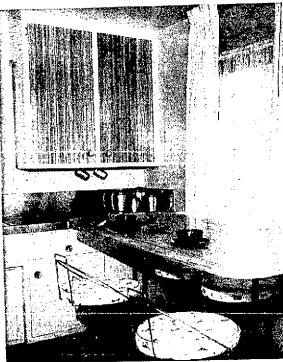

Mrs. Slaughter conceived the idea of covering the cupboards with Formica to match the bar. Strips of Formica were purchased, cut to size, and cemented to the cupboard doors. The result is the appearance of fine, polished wood which requires no effort to maintain its excellent appearance other than a quick rub with a damp cloth. Too, it will last almost indefinitely.

Slaughter added a decorator touch to the living room by covering one wall with fruitwood paneling (similar to plywood in texture and a cross between mahogany and walnut in color). It adds depth and size to the room as well as lending color and interest.
—STELLA GEORGE.

Why Paint?

Why paint or finish wood? Wood is finished to seal the surface against moisture; to facilitate cleaning, to bring out its depth, lustre and beauty; to preserve it from wear; or to change its color

Woods like west coast hemlock, Douglas fir or western red cedar take paints and varnishes very well.

Removal of a wall brought this kitchen into view. Formica, like that used on new breakfast bar, beautifies cupboards.

By Betty DeWeese

THAT SEEMS to be a difficult home modernization job becomes easy with the right tools. Jobs that should take a few minutes run into hours if you lack proper equipment.

Here are the tools which should be found in every home workshop:

A claw hammer and an axe with steel handles; three screwdrivers; two wood chisels; a cold chisel; three-cornered file; several pairs of pliers and a sander with the new steel sandpaper.

For more-involved carpentry work, you need a cross-cut saw, plane, try-square, level and hand drill. You should also have a pry-bar and a steel rule.

AS AN AID to painting and glazing, a wide puttyknife and a narrow puttyknife are invaluable.

Home handymen who undertake more complicated repairs will need additional types of tools. Makers have developed special steel tools for virtually every job around the home. Many of these are adapted from tools proved in industry.

Ask your dealer to suggest tools needed for the project you have in mind,

How About a Garden Walk?

CARDEN walks offer the possibility of becoming one of the most interesting features in home landscaping. They should be considered from both an ornamental and utilitarian point of view. It is important that the material selected for the path fit well with the surrounding effects as well as the home itself. You will discover that planning a garden walk can be just as creative as planting the seeds of your flowers.

Although a straight line is undoubtedly the shortest distance between two points, it is equally true that in some instances a curved line may prove more attractive. There are certainly no fixed rules as to the exact roule a garden path should follow. But, generally speaking, a walk that serves only the purpose of utility should not be roundabout. For example, the service path between the sidewalk and a rear porch should be established on straight lines. The milkman and other trades people will certainly appreciate the direct approach.

ORNAMENTAL WALKS are usually constructed in a meandering manner in order to provide the most attractive appearance, and a walk in a gorden is usually ideal in following a curved route. In addition, it provides the viewer with a more complete and varied scenic effect. Curved lines frequently tend to make a small garden look larger, and this certainly is a worth-while achievement.

During recent years a great many new materials have been introduced for garden walks and paths. Before starting the actual construction it is often advisable to create an experimental walk. In this way you can prove to yourself whether the texture and color of the stones, bricks, slates or gravel will prove desirable. This is an especially valuable step when a permanent walk is to be installed.

Many Long Beach area gardens are now featuring a red stepping stone that has a rec-(Continued on Page 38)

When used in this way it is advisable to sink the slabs so their tops are level with the surface of the grass. In this way you can mow over the entire area without fear of damaging the lawn mower. If the stones are elevated above the grass then you will have to mow around them, a rather discouraging chore at best.

Another local landscape employs flagstone in red and orange shades to provide a colorful effect. These are spaced several inches apart, with alyssum filling in the vacant area. Ornamental rocks are placed nearby, thus creating; an overall naturalistic effect. The flagstones have been placed on the ground, rather than being anchored in a cement base.

Large concrete blocks will prove ideal for paths.

NE OF THE most noticeable trends in wallpaper today is a return to elegance and, it's an elegance most everyone can afford! You can, for instance, buy designs by top flight artists at bargain prices.

This elegance is quieter and richer than that of yesleryear—more suitable to this day and age.

Historical designs of the past are adapted by using lighter, more subtle colors with modern textures as background for these traditional designs.

TEXTURES—moires, shiki, silks, linens, grasscloth, metalic effects, brick, stone and marble (the field is growing daily)—are simulated on wall-paper with or without pattern to bring richness into the home.

There is also a noticeable favoring of the early American theme. There's emphasis on every type of Colonial design: old block prints, early American motifs, delightful papers of modern innovation dealing with old ships, covered wagons, historic scrolls, and not forgetting the everpresent American eagle.

And—in addition to the popular light and airy florals, big and bountiful florals return in full force—but with a difference! Colors used now are so light and lovely the large florals add enormous charm to the most modern home.

BECAUSE of today's well designed modern furniture there is always a demand for the simple contemporary type of wallpaper. Curved line drawings and flat silhouettes are often used, combining with texture.

And, of course—the simulated brickwork, shutlers, shoji screening, grillwork and similar types of design—add importance and interest to

With these trends in mind, you too can keep pace with interesting new ideas in your own decorating project.

-WALTER FINCH.

Spring Words

Spring and cleaning. These are two words which have become practically inseparable. The mop, the bucket, the scrub brush are as symbolic of this season as the crocus and the daffodil. Nothing is quite so satisfying as the wakening from winter dold-rums to the constructive action of cleaning, scrubbing and polishing.

If we add to this basic spring mixture the further ingredients of repairing steps, roof, electrical appliances, painting interior and exterior surfaces, planting flowers, our community will reflect nature's reawakening.

Clean up, paint up, fix up, plant up today for a spark-ling tomorrow.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please analyze BARNETT and BURNETT.--A.E., J.B., Long Beach, F. B., Anaheim.

A. E., J. B., F. B.: BARN-ETT and BURNETT had an ancient Anglo-Saxon origin dating from 12th century Erigland. These surnames are based on "Barn-ett," a nick-name for Bernard meaning "with the strength of a bear." Although the Burnetts originated in England, they were later among Scotch nobility. Their estate was at Leys, Aberdeenshire. The Burnett' coat-of-arms has three holly leaves above a black hunting horn on a silver shield, with the motto "Virescit vulnere vurtus" or "Virtue when wounded flourishes." The Barnett shield is gold with a "black St. Andrew's cross as an emblem.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would like the shield and source of LAING.—L. L., Seal Beach, M. L., Long Beach.

L. L., M. L.: LAING is the Scotch form of the English surname Long, describing a "very tall man." The Laings were among the nobility of the Scotch counties of Midlothian and East Lothian near Edinburgh. Their coat-of-arms has three black wedges meeting in a point on a silver shield.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would like history on McCONNELL.

—B. M., W. H., Long Beach.

B. M., W. H., Long Beach.

B. M., W. H.: McCONNELL is based on the old Gaelic MacConghal meaning "Son of Conflict." An alternate source, MacDhomhnaill (Son of World-mighty) translates in both Scotch and Irish as MacConnell, in addition to the familiar MacDonnell. The Irish McConnell coat-of-arms has a blue chevron between three blue spurs on a silver shield.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please give genealogy on ROWE.—G. R., Long Beach.

G. R.: ROWE illustrates the profession of an enterprising English building expert who constructed and owned a row of village houses. His family were known as the "owners of the row." Richard del Rowe of Cheshire was a descendant in 1350. The Rowe coat-of-arms from Devon depicts religious devotion, with three Holy Lambs each holding a staff, a cross and silver banner on a blue shield.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would like genealogy on BURGESS. —V.B., Torrance; L.B., Long Beach.

V.B., L.B.: BURGESS meant "free citizen" to medieval Englishmen. This surname was among the earliest adopted. The Hundred Rolls records of 1273 list Philip Bergeis of Oxford and Thomas Burgeys of Norfolk, two remote ancestors. The ancient Burgess coat-of-arms has a black cross centered on a silver shield. Thomas Burgess and his wife Dorothy were among the founding settlers of Plymouth, Mass., in 1630.

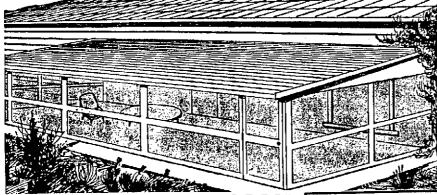

DEAR MISS RULE: Can you give the source of GIL-BERT — G. G., Mrs. R. G., Long Beach.

G. G., R. G.: GILBERT, the name of a titled English family, is traced to Derbyshire. This name, introduced by French - Norman an ancestors, meant "brilliant will-power." The Gilbert coat-of-arms, granted in 1300, has a diagonal, fur-covered black and silver band across a red shield. Humphrey Gilbert, born in 1539, was a famous English explorer. He was half-brother of Sir Walter Raleigh who introduced tobacco from Virginia to Europe.

Lomita Pines. A functional space saver, the unit makes the room appear larger than it is, at the same time having decorative qualities all its own.

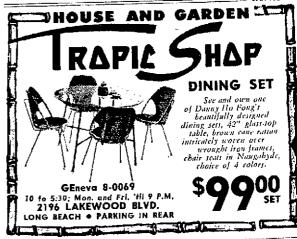

The drawers were obtained at a salvage yard at a cost of two dollars each. The two units which encase the drawers were then fashioned according to drawer measurements. The fronts were extended to provide more top surface.

The addition of a board placed low between the chests created an attractive window seat, unifying the chests into one large unit of furniture. After a thorough sanding, the whole unit was stained maple to match the headboard.

Walls in the room are covered with 4x8-foot sheets of mahogany plywood. These were glazed with vinyl paint which was quickly rubbed off and allowed to dry before a final coat of satin finish varnish was applied.

Here's How to Keep the Records Straight

IF YOUR FAMILY is one of thousands that will be moving this spring, "keeping the records straight" will get the discs to your new home or apartment in perfect con-

Rock 'n' roll or Rachmaninoff, you won't want to leave your phonograph records behind. Nor will you want them broken in moving. A little extra care in packing them, particularly the older, fragile 78s, will solve your problem.

Actually, many of the same packing procedures which apply to china and glassware plates and saucers also apply to phonograph records.

Here's how the packers of such experts as Aero Mayflower Transit Co. recommend you handle the task, whether you're packing plates or "platters." Spread a 1½-inch layer of shredded paper along the bottom of a large, sturdy carton, one with the top intact. Place a sheet of newspaper between each record or plate, then wrap them into bundles—eight or 10 records to the bundle, and five or six plates to the package

When you pack fragile phonograph records, china or glass plates, wrap them carefully and stand them on their edges.

-using two or three sheets of newspaper for wrapping.

THEN PLACE the bundles, standing on edge, in the carton. Do not lay them flat. They should be packed tightly, with no shredded paper between bundles. Record albums can be included, and they, too, should be set on edge, with the binding edges alternated.

Next, press shredded paper along the sides of the carton for cushioning and fill the carton to the top with shredded paper. Now you can fold the top cover of the carton together and seat the open or exposed edges with gummed tape. Mark the carton "fragile" and it's ready

If you wish, established movers will pack and unpack all of your possessions, as well as transport them.

The Kitchen Goes High-Style

By Caroline Coleman

THE MOST EXCITING and fashion-conscious room in the home today is the kitchen. Dramatic styling has reached a new high in steel kitchens and appliances. No wonder women all over the country are scheming and dreaming of ways to bring these modern developments into their own kitchens.

Setting the pace for the smart new look is the streamlined design of steel kitchen cabinets. They are the key-note around which to build a successful remodeling and decorating plan. Their simple

elegance is the perfect background for appliances which seem more like a dream than

WHETHER YOU have a large rambling kitchen or one just big enough to turn around in, the versatility of steel cabinets makes the most of every inch of available space. Valuable corners are used to advantage by rotary base and wall cabinets which remind one of a carousel. Equipped with lazy-susan shelves, a touch of the hand brings evry item into view. Newly featured shallow cabinets take advantage of that valuable "middle area" between base and wall cabinets without getting in the way of the counter work area. These cabinets are often used in combination with base and wall cabinets to form a wall divider unit that partially shuts off the view of the kitchen from the dining area in a large family-style kitchen.

THESE SHALLOW cabinets are just the right size to house inter-com system for a really deluxe feature. Without moving from the kitchen. you can talk to other members of the family or keep an ear tuned to infant cries from the nursery.

Grilled doors used on a sink front or to enclose a radiator add interesting variety, Pulling some cabinets on stainless steel legs instead of using the traditional method of installation is a trend that adds a spacious floating look to the room.

Even sink fixtures have been simplified. Instead of requiring two faucet handles. now a single lever faucet with stainless steel working parts controls both the water flow and the temperature

MARINE HOUSE PAINT PER GALLON

EXCEPTIONAL BARGAIN FOR LONG BEACH AREA SAVE OVER 50%

We have acquired a contract overage of about 700 gallons of EXTERIOR MARINE WHITE PAINT in one-gallon containers. It has a manufacturing date of January 20th, 1960. If this paint were available for the retail trade generally, it would sell at not less than 8.00 per gallon.

This paint is fumeproof and salt-air resistant. It cannot be equalled for whiteness, durability, or film retention.

This product was made expressly for coastal climates where salt-laden fogs and spray ruin ordinary paints. It is the type used by the U.S. Navy and Coast Guard for their coastal installations.

An unconditional guarantee goes with every gallon, and we shall make good any dissatisfaction properly

Whether you are a professional or home owner, whether you need this type of paint now or in the near future, you cannot afford to overlook this unusual offer. We acquire these bargains at infrequent intervals, and when we do, we can pass along great savings to our friends in this area.

STUCCO PAINT U. S. GOVERNMENT 395 PER GALLON

ANOTHER OUTSTANDING BARGAIN ANOTHER 50% SAVING

We have acquired 15 drums (about 750 gallons) of white stucco paint. It is a U. S. Government formula, Federal Specification No. TTP-24A, Oil, concrete and masonry exterior eggshell, ready mixed. In order to sell this product to the retail trade, we have had the entire lot filled off into I-gallon

This paint was made for a white finish only and should not be tinted. It possesses greater whiteness and hiding power than its corresponding tint base. If it were made for retail sale, it would have a list price of about $8.00 per gallon.

This paint has been tested and is in perfect condition.

It is fume-proof, salt-air resistant and is the type used by the Federal Government on its stucco buildings. It is extremely white, durable and easy to apply.

An unconditional guarantee goes with every gallon, and we will make good any dissatisfaction chargeable to the paint.

This is another outstanding buy; and in line with our policy, we will never offer or claim quality unless we have it and can prove it. We are always looking for deals like this, and when we find them, they will be passed on to the homeowners in this area at the lowest possible price.

This price will prevail until the entire lot stock is sold.

Think First!

By Walter Finch

NOWING WHERE to stop can be as important as knowing where to begin—for the do-it-yourselfer. Listed here are some important considerations for the man about to tackie any major job himself:

Has he got the time? Interest often lags when a fix-up job "drags."

Has he got the know-how? Mistakes often make the project unworkable; later correction by a "pro" may be twice as costly.

Has he got the tools? Lack of proper tools prolong the work and may possibly ruin expensive materials.

If there is just one "NO" or even a doubtful "YES" to these questions—then even the most skilled handy-man should turn the improvement job over to a contractor.

The contractor takes responsibility for the satisfactory completion of the job—within a reasonably short time. He takes care of vital things the amateur may not even think of, or know—such as permits and compliance with building codes.

Another important consideration: in areas of safety and health, such as plumbing and electrical work, even the most informed and careful amateur should not tackle the improvement.

However, in almost all fields of home construction and improvement, the contractor's know-how, experience and proper equipment will pay off, Knowing what to select for a particular job, as well as how to install it, is half the "battle."

In this age of specialization, a relatively simple improvement may often involve several crafts. Part of the contractor's service is to find the variety of specialists needed and organizing them into a smooth working team. That's how a contractor can achieve major savings in time, temper and money.

A contractor may often advise to give the project or after it. Many projects sound simple in the "talking"—yet are impractical or very costly in the "doing."

Wallpaper Tip

To paint over wallpaper successfully, first make a test application on a square yard or two, of the papered wall area. This will determine for you if the coloring matter in the paper bleeds into the paint, if embossed patterns show through, or if the paint loosens the paper.

If any of these things happen, you'd better remove the wallpaper with a steamer, then wash off any remaining paste with water. Fill all cracks with plaster or putty before painting.

Its Life Is Stainless

By Frank Flower

WHAT CAN homeowners do to keep maintenance costs down and appearance up?

Homeowners are fast discovering that there is a modernization material available which practically makes time stand still.

Housewives know it in their flatware and cutlery; sportsmen scc it in their golf clubs and fishing equipment. It's bright and it's brawny.

It's bright and it's brawny. You'll recognize it wherever it's used—in some 100,000 different ways already—by the words stainless steel. As its name implies, stainless steel comes from the vast family of steels which serve as the backbone of both the American home and the industrial plant.

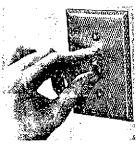

Because, in addition to being corrosion-resistant, the metal has the inherent virtues of being exceptionally strong, attractive, and commercially economical, it will pay you, the homeowner, to plan on making improvements and repairs the lifetime stainless steel way.

TAKE THE HOUSE exterior, exposed continually as it is to the vagaries of the weather. Rain, snow, and sleet, sun, wind, and smog, and even salt air if you are in a coastal region, conspire to gnaw away at our homes—probably the biggest investment most of us ever make.

One of the biggest bargains in the home modernization field today lies in combination storm and screen doors and windows made of practically indestructible stainless steel.

With glass panes of doors or windows framed in stainless steel, the chances of breakage are greatly reduced because the tremendous strength of the metal has to be overcome before the frame will bend to crack the glass.

WHILE WE'RE at the entrance, let's not overlook those practical, decorative mail-boxes, door knobs, and letters and numerals made these days in stainless steel. in jalousie doors and windows and in door and window canopies, too. For that matter, casement storm windows and weather stripping are also available in low-upkeep Ridged switch plate of stainless steel always gleams and never shows marks of fingers.

stainless steel. Roof flashing is another role in which stainless steel is wellsuited.

In the kitchen stainless steel finds wide horizons when remodeling. And for good reason. Besides all its other qualities of beauty, compatibility, strength, acid resistance, and durability, stainless steel comes clean, really clean, with ease. With a smooth, hard surface that is practically immune to all attack and adhesion, food deposits and bacteria wash nway quickly with soap or detergent and water.

From the standpoint of practicality and appearance, ask yourself, can your home afford to be without stainless steel?

A mail box of stainless steel has an enduring beauty, lends a rich note to the front door.

Stainless steel combination door is welded at more than 200 points; won't pit, tarnish.

Ladders are handy tools around the home in maintenance and repair work, but like most tools, there is a right and a wrong way to handle a ladder. Avoid hazards by following these few hints and prevent accidents during the clean up-paint upfix up period, as well as throughout the year.

Never stand on the top on any step ladder. Make certain a step ladder is fully opened and locked before you use it. The bottoms of all ladders should be on a solid footing, or otherwise anchored secure-

To be safe, also place rung type ladders at proper pitch so the distance from the bottom of the ladder to the house approximately one-fourth of the length of the ladder (if angle is greater, the ladder may break, or, if too close to the house, the ladder may tip).

Set ladder properly to avoid the mistake of over-reaching or leaning too far to one side, which is dangerous. Always face a ladder when ascending or descending and don't carry large or heavy objects-use a rope lift. Grip ladder firm with hands and be certain your shoes and the rungs or steps of ladder are free from oil, grease or mud.

Do not use makeshift or patched up ladders. Take good care of your ladder—do not leave it out in the weather to deteriorate.

A ladder is a great help in renovation work. Use it correctly and be sure you respect it as you do other good equipment and always keep safety foremost in your mind.

Fence Secret

Small lots can be made to look extra large by a secret design device long known in the Old World.

By building high, estate fences all around the four sides of the small lot, every single inch of ground becomes a part of the home and its surroundings.

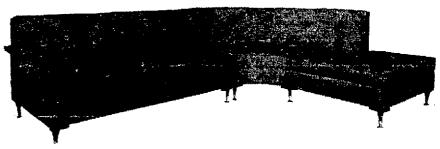

Use of the perimeter fence enclosures encourages maximum development of the entire outdoor area because privacy has been created.

Lounging decks can be built on any side of the home because they can be sheltered by the high fence from strangers' eyes.

Two or three different fence patterns lend themselves ideally to the high estate enclosure. You can use a solid fence with tight fitting boards nailed to a 2x6 top and bottom rail firmly set on 4x4 inch fence posts. You can use an offset board-on-board design. You can use a louvered, wide board design, as well as others. Either western red cedar or Douglas fir boards and dimension lumber will prove most adaptable. It is better to dip the portions of the cedar posts which will be below the ground level to insure longer wear. Creosote or one of the penta dips will suffice.

New for Walls

Wall panels that can be wiped clean with damp cloth, never show any signs of wear, help soundproof rooms and need no painting or decorating soon may be in common use both in office or industrial buildings and in homes.

Made of vinyl bonded to metal, such panels already have been used successfully for walls and partitions in public buildings. For instance, at Indiana University they are installed in the lobby and reception room of a student residence. Walls made of more common materials in the same building have been redecorated several times, while the only maintenance necessary with the Arvinyl panels has been wiping them with a cloth.

Other places where the panels have been used successfully are in a bank, commercial laundry, as office partitions and in the remodeling of an apartment building.

Panels especialy suited for homes have been introduced. They come in the form of flat sheets that can be applied with an adhesive directly to older walls in remodeling projects and in formed panels that can be applied either to a present wall or directly to wall studs and ceiling joists. The formed panels have a backing of particle board which provides rigidity and is an excellent insulating material.

Smaller Projects

Smaller home modernizing projects, requiring expenditures of less than $3,500 can usually be financed without a mortgage involved in the transaction.

What Are Studs

Studs are the vertical rows of 2x4s which make up the framing system for exterior and interior walls of a home. They are generally eight feet high and the most popular of all studs is Douglas fir, noted for its stiffness, strength and long life.

JANE POWELL, a star since she was 14, is all woman now but can't convince producers of that biological fact.

"I'm tired of being patted on top of the head," she moans.

Her plaint is one common to many actresses who started making movies in their teens. There have been exceptions -- Elizabeth Taylor at 16 played Robert Taylor's wife in

"Debbie Reynolds would still be playing 'Tammy' if the headlines hadn't convinced producers she was a mature woman instead of a kid on the lot," says Jane,

JANE IS HAPPILY married so she's not planning to get involved in the divorce courts or any other such drastic maneuvers. But career-wise, it's a big problem for her.

"I'm tired of playing the girl-next-door," she says. "What I need is a part where I play the girl in the house next door."

In a number of her Metro pictures and some television performances, Jane has come across as a sexy woman especially when she forgets her cultured soprano voice for low down blues.

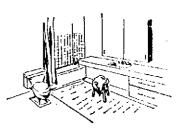

JANE THINKS some of her trouble is related to her size -five feet. But, she says, "Gloria Swanson is only 4 feet 11 but no one ever thought of her as anything but a siren. I guess it's just the way you get started in this business.

Dining Can Be a Picnic

MEALS CAN BE a "picnic" if a few permanent facilities are provided for outdoor eating.

Fresh air is notable for whetting appetities, and the pleasure of anticipation is heightened when guests and family can watch the food be-

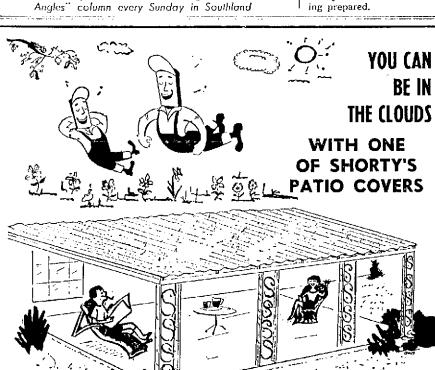

Concrete masonry units and paved area provide zest in family meals by permitting comfortable dining out of doors.

A paved area is basic for convenience in eating and entertaining outdoors. It affords solid, level support for furniture, and keeps some of the traffic off the grassy areas. A concrete slab (such as the one shown) requires almost no maintenance and is durable and weather-resistant.

ANOTHER POPULAR feature for outdoor living is a permanent fireplace. This can be elaborate or simple. It might be incorporated in a concrete masonry wall built for privacy. The fireplace shown was cleverly designed by the architect to make use of a chimney already needed for an inside fireplace, so that very little additional ma-terial or space was required. With a chimney of this height, cooking odors and smoke are drawn up out of the way.

Wall Goes Far Out

NE ENTIRE wall in the rumpus room of Mr. and Mrs. Duane Norman, 5835 E. Hanbury St., is covered with a picturesque mural which was painted by Leo Whithy. A waterfall at one end of the mural appears to fall into a small, indoor, motor-driven waterfall placed nearby, creating an interesting three-dimensional effect.

The scenic picture seems to add to the size of the roum, pushing the wall far out. Its decorative quality is a lasting conversational piece with visitors.—STELLA GEORGE.

One wall of the rumpus room in the Duane Normans' home is covered with scenic mural, adding a seeming spaciousness.

Postage stamps affixed to this dinner plate make an unusual display for wall or mantel—a conversation piece, for sure.

Postage Plate

By Alan W. Farrant

an old plate, hang it up on a wall, and you'll have something your friends will want. You need not be a stamp collector in order to appreciate this attractive display item.

Unless you have a dinnersized plate no longer wanted, it will be necessary to buy one from the dime or hardware store. Get a large one.

The stamps may be all from one country, all one color, or assorted. Most people think using an assortment makes the item more colorful, gives more eye-appeal. There will not only be many different pictures to look at, but the color schemes may be more pleasing to the eye.

USE A GOOD GRADE of glue or mucilage to fasten the stamps. They should be so placed that they overlap sach other, being stuck on without system or any thought of design. They can be straight, slanted, or upside down. Cover the entire plate, right out to the edge all the way around; so that none of the plate itself is showing. Stamps should be bent over the edge so they are partly on the back, hiding the color of the plate when viewed from the side.

When completely covered, stand the plate up against the wall on a table and step back across the room. Give it the once over. This will let you see the color scheme as it will be when finished. Now is the time to change it, if it is not the way you like it. Should there be too much of one color in one place, add a few stamps on top of those having the unwanted color. Add these additional ones sparingly.

ALLOW AT LEAST a day for the mucilage to harden. Then cover the stamps with a thin coating of clear varnish, which must be applied with a soft brush. Then put the plate in a dust-free place to dry; leaving it there for three days.

The plate may be displayed on a mantel, but looks best when hung like a picture. Plate hangers may be purchased at hardware and dime stores. A further development of the display would be to cover two smaller plates to place at sides of the central plate.

Bells provide an interesting hobby for many collectors of antiques. This is part of collection of Jewel K. Chambers.

By Helen L. Gillum

TO MANY collectors there is no more satisfying sound in the world than the chime of old bells. An oldfashioned hand bell from a schoolmaster's desk, silver dinner bells, hand - painted porcelain bells that summoned servants for fine ladies, brass camel bells from Egypt; each has its own distinctive golden tone, and each one tells a different story in the romance and history of bells.

The antique bells pictured on this page belong to Jewel K. Chambers, 2699 Caspian Avc. Most of her bells are 100 years or more old and are representative of the many types of bells of yesterday.

Perhaps the oldest bell in the group is one from Plymouth, Mass., going back to Colonial times. This bell, green with age, is four inches tall, and is in the shape of a little old lady in Pilgrim dress, whose crudely fashioned feet serve as a clapper. What appears to be date marks on the back are too corroded and worn to be read, but the din, roughly-lettered word "Plymouth" is discerpible there.

MRS. CHAMBERS also owns a dainty sterling silver table bell made by Tiffany. This beautifully engraved bell bears the initials "E. R. C." and the date June 29, 1870. Its artistic design and workmanship indicate that it must have been made especially for a particular person long ago, perhaps a young bride.

An important bell is one of cobalt blue pressed glass. It is six inches high, and was possibly used at one time as a dinner bell. This is one of only two bells of its kind remaining today. Another rare specimen is a Royal Meissen porcelain bell with crossed-swords mark. The crossed swords worked again into the cobalt blue flower and leaf design on the bell is an indication of the authenticity of the piece.

Of particular beauty and mellow tone is a small solid copper bell from India, with a remarkable embossed design from which sparkles jewellike colors. A small brass bell

Breakfast for Two

Duane Norman bought their home (which was built in the early 1940s) at 5835 E. Hanbury St., they were beset with the problem of making attractive a small kitchen complete with washing machine in full display. Too, there was no eating area in the kitchen, a handy feature for busy working people. They solved the problem in an expert way.

The washing machine was moved out, and the small area in which it had been placed was decorated with a gay wallpaper complementing the kitchen colors. They pur-chased a tiny breakfast unit consisting of a redwood table big enough for two and matching benches for either side. The table sits firmly in place against the wall and the small but very functional area is used daily. It appears to add to the size of the kitchen, and serves as a fine decoralive touch.

-STELLA GEORGE

Lacking space for a kitchen dining area, the Duane Normans moved out the washing machine and installed this cozy setup.

Florence E. Grantham, 1626-B Cedar Ave., did.

It was 1906.

Perry Van Dervort, manager of the Vulcan Oil Refinery in Pittsburgh and his wife, Florence, had become "sick and tired" of the snow and cold weather of Pitts-burgh. They loaded up their four youngsters—the oldest Florence (Mrs. Grantham), then 5 years old-and took a train for California.

Mrs. Grantham remembers there was a stove in the middle of the railroad car, and the men took turns stoking it with coal and wood. There was no way to get food, but Mrs. Van Dervort had brought along a big wicker basket filled with food for her family. She heated milk on a small alcohol stove for the youngest, a boy 10 weeks old.

They arrived in Los Angeles with $1.

"We would have had $6," recalls Mrs. Grantham, "but a man came through selling little bags of peanuts for a penny. I wanted some pea-nuts. My father gave me a penny-later he realized it was a $5 gold piece."

Tribute to a Chief

By B. L. Sonnichsen

THIS MONTH marks the death 14 years ago of a famous Indian chief, No-Nu-Ma or Thunderbird, one of the last great chiefs of the Cheyenne on the Tongue River reservation, Cheyenne, Wyo.

As a child, No-Nu-Ma inherited membership in the sacred order of the White Light people and was chosen by his elders for training as a priest of the order. His home was 40 miles east of Camp Supply on the Cimarron River.

No-Nu-Ma attended the Carlisle Indian School and later, as Chief Thunderbird, he spent much of his life in government service as assistant disciplinarian at Carlisle; district farmer, leasing clerk of Indian lands, acting superintendent and special disbursing agent of an Indian agency; interpreter and Indian scout in the U.S. Cavalry, and investigator for the U.S. Department of Justice, positions in which he served with dignity and moral rightness.

THUNDERBIRD later became interested in show business, traveling with Miller Brothers 101 Ranch, and the Orpheum circuit, acting on the stage as singer and dancer of Indian tribal dances.

Universal Studios, RKO and many others used No-Nu-Ma to act and be technical adviser in films such as "Annie Oakly," "The Plainsman," and "The Covered Wagon." Showing of the latter film featured Thunderbird in person at Grauman's Chinese Theater in Hollywood for the duration of the billing.

Sid Grauman, Barbara Stanwyck, Preston Foster, Melvyn Douglas, Charlia Chaplin and many others were among his close friends.

As an actor, Thunderbird was a natural; he had an easy, friendly way that attracted people to him, and many youngsters can remember this great chief's kindness in helping them find work at movie studios where he was under contract.

Thunderbird loved children and devoted much time to the Boy Scouts of Los Angeles and vicinity, lecturing on Indian lore, illustrating his talks with fahulous displays of costumes, jewelry, bows, arrows and accessories.

WITH SIGNING of movie contracts, Thunderbird took up residence in Pasadena and his beautiful home was constantly filled with notables from all over the country; he had a fine sense of humor and enjoyed a joke immensely, he loved to entertain and be entertained, but with all his graciousness the great chief was firm when it came to making a decision and sticking by it.

His daughter, Woh-a-Me-Ha-Hi (White Voice), who is Mrs. Forest Wright of San Bernardino, furnished the pictures for this article and tells of the time her father was signed as actor and technical adviser for the Filming of "The Plainsman."

The entire company flew to Montana on location—but not Chief Thunderbird. He refused to fly and no amount of coaxing or cajoling would got him to set foot in an airplane; he had great respect for the huge mechanical bird but no desire to travel in one.

The company finally consented to send him to Montana by automobile and waited three days for his arrival to start the picture.

Thunderbird presented a majestic and commanding figure in full Indian dress and the magnificent, traditional costume was worn in many movies.

HIS SHIRT was of heavy deerskin, fringed and decorated with beaded strips, his vest and moccasins full-beaded in traditional pattern, and his robe of blue strouding had a wide, beaded strip.

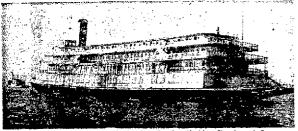

Thunderbird's war bonnet

Thunderbird's war bonnet was of fine eagle feathers, a magnificent creation with long, sweeping trailer, the headpiece decorate dith beadwork and a clever imitation of ermine skins.

Accessories were a colorfully decorated tambourine type tom-tom with beating stick, bead and quill decorated pipe bag for his catlinite (red stone) pipe, three dance whistles and choker collars of small bone beads, glass and brass beads and miniature moonshells. This costume is on display at the Southwestern Museum in Pasadena.

Thunderbird lived a spectacular and happy life, and his death in 1946 at the age of 80 was mourned by all who knew him. He was buried wearing the breechcloth and leggings of his costume, or as the Indians say, "Thunderbird took his leggings with him."

Woh-a-Me-Ha-Hi observes that the passing years have brought many changes, but the spirit of her father, great chief Thunderbird, will be a lasting memory.

Delta King, once proud river steamer, being towed into Victoria, B. C., for final preparation for return to Stockton.

By Maymie R. Krythe

EVER SINCE the days of clipper ships, ships and shipping have been news on the West Coast.

One of the most popular steamers in our history is the Delta King, called "Pride of the Sacramento-San Francisco run," and "last of the historic sternwheelers on the West Coast." Built at Stockton in 1926, the King had a varied career, but recently many thought her. California days were over. She has, however, returned to her native habitat -Stockton-and will end her days there as a historic landmark and recreation center.

The saga of the King and her sister vessel, the Delta Queen, still in service as a palatial river steamer plying between Cincinnati and New Orleans, goes back to the early 1920s, A Stockton shipbuilding company had two hulls of galvanized steel made in Scotland, then knocked down and shipped to Stock-

AT THE COLBERG shipyard the two hulls were reassembled and other work completed at the time when "packet-boating was drawing its last breath." The King, which cost about one million dollars, is 285 feet long, 58 wide, with a tonnage of 1,318. Her four decks were constructed of mahogany, teak, nak, and Oregon cedar, while the interiors, with graceful stairways, also were of fine woods. Overhead are domes with stained glass.

Both ships went into immediate service on the San Joaquin and Sacramento Rivers. The Delta King tied up across from the Stockton Hotel and each evening at 6 o'clock spectators gathered to see the start of the night run to San Francisco. She could carry 200 passengers and more than 2,000 tons of freight.

When World War II started, the Navy took over the King and she carried troops to and from ocean-going vessels in San Francisco Bay. In 1952 the Aluminum Company of Canada, Ltd. bought her, and succeeded in towing her up the coast and to the new British Columbia town of Kitimat. Old river men had declared such a trip for this veswas impossible because she has a flat bottom, no keel, and draws only seven feet of water. But the sturdy craft made it.

AT KITIMAT the King (protected by a cofferdam) performed gallant service in housing 200 workers, acting as auxiliary power station, and by furnishing heat for the school, hospital and other buildings.

However, Stockton missed Its old steamer, and sentiment grew to get the Delta King to preserve as a historical monument. Members of the Greater Stockton Chamber of Commerce started the campaign and were aided by various groups. When asked his opinion about the preservation of the steamer, Aubrey Neasham, state historian, de-

"... one of the most important historical preservation projects . . . to portray the maritime history of California. The Delta King holds a unique place in the history of river boats of the State."

At first, the idea was for the State to purchase the steamer; and Sen. Alan Short, in his bill to acquire it, stated:

"The stern paddle - wheel steamboat played a vital and glorious role in the growth of California. The last remaining stern paddle-wheel west of the Mississippi is the Delta King, Originally constructed in Stockton, this historic vessel is about to be sold. , . Unless immediate action is taken the State may lose its last opportunity to acquire the Delta King . . ."

BUT PLANS changed. A Stockton business group decided to finance the project and negotiated for the steamer. The cofferdam was pulled away last March 28 and the Delta King was refloated. She was fitted for a sea journey and towed down the coast, through the Golden Gate to her permanent berth at Stockton. She is now being reno-vated to serve as the hub of Kessel Kove, a recreation center where parking and lighting have already been installed. The owners hope to restore her to her original condition and to install a museum reminiscent of riverboat days. An upper deck restaurant, gift shops and 60 suites to be remodeled and used for a hotel are in the plans. Final cost is expected to reach about $125,000.

Work done, the Delta King will start a new life of new usefulness with the river she once plied so proudly as her companion in her remaining (Moviegoers all over the country may have an opportunity chance to see the Delta King in the movie, "Huckle-berry Finn." Recently, Samuel Goldwyn Jr. took his company, including Eddie Hodges and Archie Moore, to Stockton and river scenes of the famous Mark Twain story were shot in the Delta region of the San Joaquin.

(The Delta King became a "movie star" for a few days, in her role as a Mississippi River steamboat. For this, the company changed her appearance somewhat, by adding two false stacks, topped crowns, thus adding another interesting chapter to the life of the famed old paddle-wheeler.)

May's Here, With Plenty to See!

By Fred Taylor Kraft

MAY IS HERE, and the Southland traveler never had it so good. May weather for which Southern California is famous, the breath of spring still on the land-scape, and more unusual events than can be imagined anywhere else in the world!

So let's make plans—right now-to go places and see things this month!

Here are a few big doin's in the fire as rounded up by the All-Year Club, chambers of commerce and other groups to pass on to you:

At Walt Knott's restored ghost town of Calico, riders on donkeys will race four miles to Yermo during Calico Days, May 6-8. A donkey baseball game also is on tap. All this plus the attractions you would find in a mining town of the late 1800s.

Pomona marks the 124th year of progress in Pomona Valley with a city-wide historical La Fiesta Del Valle de Pomona on May 6-7.
In Santa Barbara, the an-mal Rancheros Visitadores Trek starts at 3 p.m. May 7 with public ceremonies at Santa Barbara Mission and winds up at Mission Santa Inez a week later. Six hundred persons wil participate on horseback and in carriages, stopping each night at a ranch as did the California dons at roundup time.

The Newport-Ensenada Yacht race, a big international affair, starts Thursday at Newport Harbor and winds up Saturday at Ensenada, at the height of the Cinco de Mayo celebration.

Julian, in San Diego's "hack country," will display 2,000 varieties of wildflowers from surrounding mountains and desert May 7-22 in its town hall, Fresh flowers will replace wilted ones each day. Those are a few of the events slated during the next week, with a score of others set for later in the month which we'll tell you about next week.

AND SPEAKING of May goings-on, five scheduled in California are listed among the "Top Twenty" events in the nation by the National Association of Travel Organ-Association of Tracer Organizations: Rancheros Visitadores trek, mentioned above; Grubstake Days and Fast Draw Contest (the Old West comes to life), Yucca Valley, May 13-15; Luther Burbank Rose Festival (dedication of reconstructed gardens), Santa Rosa, May 13-15; Citracado Days (free lemonade and avocado dip stations), Escondido, May 18-22; Ocean Carnival (Mardi Gras type parade opens summer beach season), Santa Monica, May 28.

DON'T OVERLOOK the fact that the great waterfalls at Yosemite are now at their best. A tour into Yosemite on one of the main roads and out by a different one, with perhaps an excursion along one of the winding country roads such as that by way of Raymond to the Wawona Road, or La Grange to the Mother Lode Hwy. 49, makes a pleasant introduction to the year's early season of high water in the park. Hurry and you'll see flowers of many colors crowding the road

ANYONE FOR Las Vegas? Union Pacific's train, City of Las Vegas, is now leaving Los Angeles at 8 a.m. (Pacific Standard Time), and Las Vegas at 2:45 p.m. (Pacific Standard time), both one hour earlier than heretofore. Now operating on a three-times-aweek basis, making a round trip from L.A. on Thursdays, Fridays and Sundays, the train will make the run daily starting May 28.

PALM SPRINGS lists some interesting May events: Sun-down Member - Guest Mixed Foursomes Golf, Bermuda Dunes Country Club, May 6-13-20-27; Luau, Shadow Mountain Club, May 14; Eighth Annual Luau, Descrt Air Hotel, May 21.

YOU CAN BORROW, to show to your club, a soundcolor film called "San Diego-Land"-a film that captures the attractions of the San Diego area - by contacting the San Diego Convention and Tourist Bureau, 924 Second Ave., San Diego 1. The film, in 16-mm only, has a running time of 27 minutes.

OTHER TRAVEL films available to organized adult groups without charge are offered by KLM Royal Dutch Airlines, These are 16mm, too. Subjects include glimpses of Europe. For details, write the airline at 609 Fifth Ave., New York 17, N.Y.

Daddy-0 and His Cats

Big Daddy-O to a family of cool cats, George Nordeen provides two-a-day chow for Flora Feline, Black Tom and kits.

By Marian Henderson

"COME OVER to my pad, Dad, and I'll break out a can of catnip."

But the cats that roost at the rear of one of Long Beach's swank shops at 7th and Pine Ave., are not beathreed or catniks. Their whiskers are regulation length and the only poetry they spout is a loud chorus of "Meow" when the chuck wagon arrives, driven by George Nordeen who's been Daddy-O to the cats, their cousins and their sisters and aunts for several years.

It all began when Flora Feline, a shy little cat of mixed ancestry decided to raise her family in genteel surroundings instead of an unfashionable neighborhood behind some beanery. Attracted by pretty clothes (being female) and a good address (being respectable), she gave birth to her first litter of kittens four years ago, and thereby hangs a cat's tale. Spring and summer, despite any birth con-trol controversy among mankind, Flora placidly produces progeny to stand future guard duty and chase away any marauding mice.

FLORA MUST have sensed that Nordeen who lives at 1905 E. 53rd St. and who has been employed by the store for 10 years, is a cat lover (he has four of his own plus several parakee(s). Morning and night, when his car pulls in the parking lot, Flora rounds up the family while George bangs on a tin pie plate and calls, "Come and get it."

If anyone thinks the feline family is fickle, Flora has had the same black hepcat husband for two years. Faithful as a bill collector, he joins mother and kittles each night for show, counting noses to see how many kits are still around home.

Surprisingly, most of the kittens are adopted into good homes. One of Flora's more status seeking cats wandered next door to a furriers'. Attracted by a shiny, expensive car parked in front she climbed through a window and curled up on the back seat. The woman who owned the car arrived home and was surprised to find a sleepy-eyed kitten mewing in the back. The family had a small daughter who wanted a cat, so everybody lived happily ever after. And Flora licked her paws contentedly because it isn't every day that a cat lands in the lap of luxury.

When the weather is cold, Flora moves her family to warmer quarters inside a large meter box. On frosty mornings the cats toast their tootsies on top of Nordeen's car. When it's hot, they laze under the laurel trees eyeing the sparrows. Sometimes, when a sale is in progress the cats press curious faces against the glass door to peer at the women milling around inside.

LAST FALL Flora went on an intellectual kick and decided her education needed improving, what with everyone demanding degrees. She picked the Board of Education building for a birthplace. Six weeks later however, when Pinc Ave. was dark and there was little traffic, she laborously crossed the street seven times, each time with a kitten held firmly in her mouth. Nordeen and the old homestead were too much for her to give up.

This summer the status of things may change. Tom cats are getting choosey and it is getting increasingly hard to marry off the older cats who are not adopted. Unfortunately, there is also a male shortage in cat circles, and a mother has to hand over a thumping dowery to get rid of any female cat over five months old. It's getting so that the ordinary Tom not only wants a cat that's hep but she must furnish wall-towall and a warm pad besides.

New materials in other fields have influenced current home improvement projects. Colorful ceramic tiles of delicate design, produced in Southern California, have inspired a succession of modern kitchens to rival the luxury of the ancient Roman baths.

Designers such as Millard Sheets, Paul McCobb and Paul Laszlo have contributed new texture, pattern and contour to this formerly commonplace material, once almost outmoded by hardboard sheets. Applied with imagination, tile now is not limited to kitchen and bath, but is used dramatically for feature walls in all living areas.

RECENT DEVELOPMENTS in paints and other wall covings have opened the door to new possibilities in interior

Easily washable and very durable, the vinyl-coated paper comes in various patterns and colors as well as textures and is especially useful in kitchens and children's rooms.

Matching wallpaper and draperies, available for some time now, is becoming more popular all the time, according to local suppliers. Some of this material comes in prepasted form for the do-it-yourself types.

VINYL ADDITIVES have produced a whole new generation of paints of seemingly inexhaustible usefulness in various form these paints are suitable for interior or exterior, and for every kind of surface from smooth woud to porous concrete.

The ubiquitous vinyl also has been a favorite in the floor covering field, providing surfaces which need no waxing and which show no wear after years of traffic.

These new and familiar materials, together with the know-how of the professional building mechanic trades and the skills of the home handymen, are transforming the residential areas of the Southland into a new and ever more delightful form.

Kitchen Comes First

Giving the stock pot a stir at the Petroleum Club's shining new kitchen is Jean (Frenchy) Vieu, head cook at the club.

By Betty Hardesty

EVERY organization's brunch, luncheon, banquet and dinner-dance is dependent upon the kitchen; and staff which prepares the food. Responsible as chairmen of these occasions feel, seldom do they visit the kitchens where their meals are prepared. Few have the privilege of watching an expert chef and staff work in a new, beautiful and well-arranged kitchen such as that of the Long Beach Petroleum Club, 3636 Linden Ave.

Those who do pass along the Club kitchen's smooth, completely stainless steel equipment lined aisles, are most fascinated by the "stock pot," a giant floor kettle which holds 40 gallons, Its lid is up when in use. Egg shells, tomato tops and other vegetable trimmings, with hunks of meat and bones bob in the simmering water to puzzle the uninformed. Newcomers appreciate the stockpot's thrifty pupose once they understand that such extras of good food unsuitable for table serving, are utilized in this way to pro- (Continued on Page 66)

Carroll's Hideaway Tract

By V. Franklin Limerick

IN THE heart of Long Beach, hidden away from the turbulent urban traffic, is a unique residential area, arranged with a labyrinth of circuitous drives. It is known as Carroll Park.

East of Junipero Ave. between 3rd and 4th Sts., this picturesque project of a pioneer subdivider was laid out by John Carroll 50 years ago in what was then considered "out in the country." A favorite trick of real estate agents at that time was to take their prospect first to Carroll Park then swing back in toward town to make the lots they had for sale appear quite close in by comparison.

Although the city has grown to engulf the unusual tract, this charming maze of twining streets remains isolated from the busy hum around it. The confusing layout discourages through traffic. Drivers hesitate to enter the Park unless they are thoroughly familiar with its twists and turns. It is very easy to get completely lost here. The unwary can come out of the ordeal as dizzy as a waltzing mouse.

The intersections, winding streets mean trouble to anyone seeking an address in the locale. One busy filling station operator in the area had small maps made to pass out so he could attend to things other than giving directions as to how to find residences within the Park.

IN THE BEGINNING, large houses were built on the estate sized plots with artistically landscaped grounds. Later, some of the enormous lots were divided. Smaller homes were placed in chummy juxtaposition to stately mansions.

Built on curving drives that overlook four geometrically shaped parks, the Carrol Park residences have a delightful, wide-open view. John Carroll donated these small parks to the city in 1909. They are attractively arranged and maintained with reasonable beds of colorful flowers and neatly trimmed grass, shrubs and These beauty spots trees. teem happily with romping children and pets. As one caustic free-swinging teenager put it: "The place is really jumpin' with kids, cats and curs."

Carroll chose to live in the spot of beauty he had created and reserved one of the spacious lots for his own use. For many years his house and beautiful gardens were a show place.

The estate changed hands as the years went by and in 1946 a religious group bought the house and grounds for $35,000 and huilt a large church. But the fine, old-fashioned Carroll house was left intact and used for a parsonage until 1957. Then, in one crushing blow, a buildozer wrecked the three-story mansion to make way for expansion of the church. A trim, modern Fellowship Hall was creeted on the site.

THE MATRIARCH of Carroll Park was now in the limbo of things that were; gone forever was the widow's watch tower... the butler's pantry with marble slabs. The covered brick walk that led to the porte-cochere where the ladies had entered and left their carriages, had been torn down. And the carriage block in the back, close to the old carriage house had been hauled away with the rubbish.

Only a gnarled old tree had been left standing, a memento of a bygone era.

Gone forever were the other trees that had grown old with the house—the trees that had seemed to murmur sympathetically and to conspire among themselves to reach out in a loyal attempt to conceal the shabbiness of the aging mansion. They had grown rampantly tall but had stopped short of belittling the house; of blocking the clear view to the sea from the top windows. The senile dowager's head had been high above the uncontroled growth about her to the end. It took a powerful machine to crush her serone dignity.

Tourists rarely stumble on to Carroll Park. Many longtime residents of the city are unaware of its existence. And those who do know of its whereabouts shy away from its maze.

To go back to the teenager: his favorite sarcastic dismissal is "get lost!" It's no problem to follow his advice if you wander into Carroll Park without a chart.

Pioneer subdivider John Carroll built his tract of homes in what was "the country." Now the City of Long Beach surrounds the area, but the subdivision remains isolated.

Public Pasture to Human Range

By Aubrey B. Haines

WALK through Pershing Square in downtown Los Angeles today, and you find nothing left to indicate that the site was once a public pasture. Mules and loose stock wandered over the area and a country road crossed it. Years ago Pershing Square was known as the Lower Plaza. It was so distant from the business section around the old Plaza that the City Council thought the land surrounding it would never be used for anything but private homes. So the Council sold the land, dividing it into narrow lots and selling them for about 35 cents a front foot.

THE PARK then was any

thing but beautiful. A small brook ran through it. In winter the brook was full of water, but in summer it was dry except for a few stagnant pools. Here mosquitoes buzzed and frogs croaked.

A man used to carry water in a bucket to the few trees he was able to keep alive in the dusty square. He got the water from the city carrier, who pushed a barrel of it on wheels to people's houses. It was claimed that the man was wasting precious drinking water on trees planted where "any fool might know they wouldn't grow." But the man paid no attention and continued to drag his pall to his beloved trees.

FINALLY, ONE of the irrigation ditches of the town's water system was extended through the park, But Pershing Square was still so far away from the Los Angeles business district that people made it a day's excursion with horses and buggies to go there to enjoy band concerts. If anyone traversed it at night, he must carry a gun, for it was a likely place to be robbed.

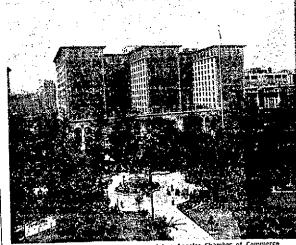

Today Pershing Square is centrally located at 5th, 6th, Hill, and Olive Sts., in the heart of the downtown district. It has rather imposing surroundings. The Biltmore Hotel stands on the site of an old Episcopal cathedral on the west side, and the Phil-harmonic Auditorium rises to the north. Pershing Square is a park of trees imported from countries, with broad walks and benches. Pigeons flock around the fountains for largess. A periodic demand for their execution is made by tenants of the surrounding office buildings, who claim that the birds' habits are highly unpredictable.

Not the least interesting aspect of the square is its human inhabitants. It is the gathering place for large numbers of retired Middle Westerners, a few tramps, westerners, a new tramps, and—on holidays—sailors and their girls. The benches are erowded with characters fit for a Dickens novel. Some are discouraged, ragged, unemployed, sick people. Others are lonely tourists who wish to find someone to talk with.

THE SHTERS continually leap to their feet to join in the arguments raging between the benches. Often the walks are obstructed by twenty altercations at once, each group of disputants surrounded by a crowd of men eager to participate. Politics, religion, history, and almost everything are argued about, many debaters manufacturing their facts as they proceed. Students from nearby Bible Institute join in the disputes to save souls and for forensic purposes.

Sometimes the talk turns to science. Recently a ragged man with a scraggly beard asserted that our heat does not come from the sun. If it did, he argued why does it grow cold as one ascends mountains?

As square appeared before face-lifting some years ago when garage was installed. Trees were replaced in new formation.

Lemon cranberry ice served in orange shells is a refreshing dessert to lighten meals for persons on low sodium diets.

By Mildred K. Flanary Independent, Press-Tolegram Home Economics Editor

TESSERTS often pose a problem for people on low sodium or controlled-fat diets. For them, many of the popular sweet desserts are taboo because of the large amount of eggs and shortening that are used.

Fresh oranges and lemons are especially useful for people on low sodium diets. A Lemon Cranberry Ice squeeze of lemon brings out the flavor of many foods that ordinarily would be seasoned with salt. Oranges are a joy to dieters and blend well in fruit dessert combinations. One of these popular flavor pairs is a mixture of citrus with cranberries. Lemon Cranberry Ice, frozen in orange shells, is a refreshing, yet satisfying dessert.

Light Up a Basket!

By Edna Ward Hicks

THE SUBDUED glow of lanterns creates a feeling of gaiety and pleasure, whether fragile paper, filmy silk, colored plastic or sturdy decorative woven rattan baskets are used in the making.

A cold patio can be transformed into the warm atmosphere of Hawaiian or Japunese decor just by adding a few lanterns.

For variety, add a raltan lantern that will withstand the atmospheric conditions of the seasons in your garden.

In an informal family room, you can use a lantern as space drama, without even a light in it.

Most any lantern basket will give the illusion of a hanging flower basket if you use plastic flowers and vines entwined around the reeds. When wired for electricity, the soft glow of light will sift through the vines at night, and is safe, just so the globe doesn't touch the reeds or the plastic vines.

TRY YOUR SKILL in making a rattan illuminated basket lantern by combining two baskets that fit together and deep enough to hold the globe without touching the rattan.

Drill a hole through the top basket for the cord to pass through; install a pull-chain socket, then fasten the two baskets together and you have an oriental basket lantern.

The cord can be partly hidden if you thread it through the ruttan chain. Rattan chain can be purchased in seven-foot lengths. Baskets and chain can be painted or varnished with any paint used for wood.

Three cone-shaped lanterns of different sizes but harmoniously related can be hung in a problem corner to add interest. They may also be placed in various locations in a room, with or without lights, as a dramatic, airy decoration.

Cone baskets can be dismantled at Christmas and used for decorative purposes on a table, resembling trees, or as "welcome door" ornaments when filled with frosty, glittering balls and greenery.

IVY CAN BE TWINED along the chain of two rattan Christmas bells that are sturdy enough to be placed outdoors.

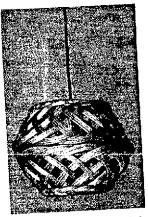

An artificial bird can be perched atop a bread-basket combination hidden in a shrubbery area where a light will give an interesting glow from within. Basket may be painted white and glitter added to make a shiny ball by day, a cheery lantern by night at the Yule scuson.

Any of the lanterus can be an in-use or a non-light decoration to enhance a party theme. When the basket lanterus are richly decorated with colored, glittery glass ornaments and greenery at Christmas time, many decoration problems can be solved.

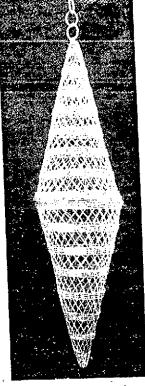

After you've made an illuminated basket, come wind or fog, summer or winter, the inclosure for your light will be sturdy and useful as well as ornamental.

Two waste baskets make tubular lantern for use in large area. Artificial flowers make this a flower basket in the daytime.

Bread baskets are formed in lantern shape here. Placed back of shrubbery in gardens they cast intriguing glow.

Cone-shaped lanterns give a note of beauty. These can be assembled and placed about a room for decorative offects.

Jekyll and His Hyde Go to Dinner

BERTRAND CARNEJOUX, who in his past wrote a good novel but now earns a rich living as editor, and his young wife Martine entertain at dinner. They hoped for eight or 10 guests, but get six, with one husband and one wife missing, and one callow youth as a last-minute substitute.

Except for servants hired for the evening, these characters are Claude Mauriac's entire cast in "THE DINNER PARTY" (George Braziller, $4). He seats them around the table-and provides the reader with a seating chart; then he pours champagne to loosen their tongues and spice their talk, They touch on Proust, Balzac, Gerard Manley Hopkins, and very wittily, on Tristan Bernard; they mention New York, Athens, Russia, dressmakers and other topics. But through the polite veneer of their table manners they break out their private thoughts; they talk to one another but then each to himself.

So we have not eight characters but 16, every man and his alter ego, Jekyll and his Hyde, the "Great God Brown" and his masked double. What they say is proper enough but what they think they were sensible to leave unsaid -all about their liaisons, mistresses and lovers, the ren-dezvous they've had and the ones they scheme for. They have impeccable standards in literature, politics, esthetics, everything, but not in love; in love they have no standards at all.

Mauriac packs all this into n compact and economical form. A best seller in France, his novel-translated by Merloyd Lawrence-crackles with the mordant exchange of the outer and shameless inner

THE YEAR 1917, WHEN AMERICA plunged into World War I, is the subject of "THE FIERCE LAMBS" (Little, Brown, $3.95). Author A. A. Hoebling covers a wide front, from events leading up to President Wilson's designation to the feeting pureder President Wilson's declaration to the festive parades of "G. I. Joe" in Paris, and he brings back memories with songs and jokes that sprang from that time and those events. The above photo, one of the many illustrations, shows men of the First Division—most of whom did not know how to march—about to board their transports at Hoboken.

lidden Sewing Center

N THE STUDY of the home belonging to Mr. and Mrs. Albert Bath, 4515 Hazelbrook Road, a closet opens up to reveal a small sewing center with a place for the machine and all the necessities for dressmaking and mending.

The closet is the width of the opened machine which nests comfortably within the area. Above, Bath replaced former book shelves with small drawers for patterns, material, and similar sewing needs. Directly in front of the machine, and flat against the wall, is a large strip of peg board on which to hang scissors and spools of thread, handy for instant use.

Twin shutter doors with magnetic locks keep everything hidden from view. The unit is small but prefect, a practical solution to many a homemaker's problem.

Gremlins Flub a Neg

By The Shutterbug

WE'RE ALL aware of the photo gremlins that lurk at every camera fan's elbow. At the least sign of inattention, they're the unseen spirits who put the lens cap back over the lens or replace the film slide in the holder when the shooting starts. They're responsible for pouring hypo in the developer tray and setting back the darkroom timer so it never rings at the vital

But all gremlins aren't the ruinous type. There must be a few whose sole business it is to atone for the mischief caused by the majority. They're the ones who turn an occasional double exposure into an unusual accidental masterpiece. Or sometimes they'll set the focus slightly off or shake the camera a wee bit so that the photograph, instend of being spoiled, is somehow magically enhanced by a spiritual mood or feeling of movement that would have been difficult to anticipate.

IN DEVELOPING some 4x5 negatives recently, I followed usual routine and transferred

I went ahead with the negative, anyway, and obtained the strange print that is reproduced with this article. Since the subject was a magician and his staff-who reg-

We've all seen many effective solarized pictures. Most of them are not the results of helpful gremlins or darkroom accidents. These effects can be planned if a camera fan is interested in obtaining off-beat results. A figure in a light costume against a dark background is the best type of subject matter. Negatives are usually developed for about three-fourths normal time, then subjected to a flash of white light before completion of developing.

IT WOULD BE a good idea to shoot half a dozen negatives of the same or similar pose and develop one nor-mally while experimenting with the duplicates.

Besides solarization, try reticulation, which is a cracking of the emulsion in an all-over pattern which can be interesting. It's the result of a sudden change of temperature during processing. If negatives are put in a developer which is unusually high in temperature -about 90 degrees-and then slapped into a cold hypo bath of about 60 degrees, reticulation is bound to occur. Of course, a higher developer temperature requires a correspondingly shorter developing or divisions, from seeds blooming the following year after planting, living on from year to year through the coolest winters. Both make excellent, lasting cut flowers.

Painted Daisy is a handsome, showy plant with at-tractive, light green, fern-like foliage. It was a favorite in old-fashioned gardens. Though recently it has been grown more in England and on the continent than in the United

The blooms are single or double, several inches across, on slender stalks two feet tall. Colors are white and shades of lilac, pink rose, salmon and carmine-red with yellow centers.

THE PLANTS BLOOM through spring and into summer. Because of the unusual lacy foliage the plants are beautiful, even when not in bloom. They grow to three feet. Cut back the plants after their first blooming and they will set buds and produce a second crop of flowers later in the season.

Pyrethrums like a welldrained, rich, loamy soil, well fertilized with manure and an all-purpose fertilizer during the growing scason.

Do not overwater. The plants are subject to stem rot in too moist soil. The roots lie close to the surface. If the foliage rots in mid-summer do not hesitate to cut it away unsparingly.

"HAWAIIAN"

Fern-like folioge and large, colorful flowers of daisy type make pyretum a handsomo garden flower and showy cut bloom.

A new hybrid, "Startler," is just that. Its huge daisylike single flowers are three inches across, are a spectacular deep crimson-rose color in contrast to the light yellow PYRETHRUMS may be set out in divisions or established plants in fall or spring. Seeds are sown in spring.

According to legend, the Grecian warrior Achilles was said to have discovered the hardiness of the pretty flower named after him, "Achillea." This subject is one of the sturdiest perennials for any garden. The interesting, pretty flower has had numerous other legends attributed to its history. There is an old su-perstition that if one sleeps on a midsummer night's eve upon a bunch of the flowers, he or she will dream of a future wife or husband, as it may be. The plant bears many unusual names, or rather nicknames, among them "Goose Tongue," "Sev-en Years' Love" and "Fair Maids of France," to mention

THE PLANT THRIVES in poor, dry ground if the drainage is adequate, preferring a light, sandy place in the sun. Mix a little lime in the soil, but do not fertilize. The plant will do well in rock gardens, in a border or in massed beds.

In the variety Achillea Ptarmica, the popular double Achillea recommended for gardens, the flower is a fluffy dosette of pure white. These dosette flowers make charming bouquets, especially in low bowls. The flowers are borne in loose clusters from June to September.

The plants grow two feet high, the lower stems forming a thick foliage mat.

In the garden, Achillea should be kept well picked because after the first bloom the plants turn brown and present an unsightly, rusty appearance.

In planting, allow 10 to 12 inches of space between each plant. Sow seeds in spring. Start plants from divisions in fall or early spring.

How to Keep Dichondra Green

When seeding an established now grass short and remove clippings from the cut lawn.

By Joe Littlefield

F SHEEP or rabbits nibbled the leaves off your dichondra lawn, you'd do something about it, but quickly! Yet, some home owners blithely ignore an occasional fat, gray moth lazily flying over their dichendra lawns, "casing" a certain spot to alight, burrow between the leaves to the soil area in order to lay eggs. These eggs eventually hatch into cutworms which do heavy damage to dichondra.

A smart investment right now would be to get a garden spray that knocks out cutworms and lawn moth worms and spray the lawn,

Additionally, you can help dichondra lawns by using a fertilizer containing insecticide for control of moths and worms. It should be a fertilizer recommended for dichondra and for use under Southern California temperature, water and soil conditions. One that has organic nitrogens for gradual and smooth release to grow and color turf leaves. Nitrogens should contain urea, tankage, sludge and blood meal. Phosphorus and potassium in the fertilizer is added to harden leaf and stem growth and develop heavy root systems. Addition of gypsum and sulphur to react against alkali soils and water, plus a meas-ured supply of trace minerals such as iron, zinc, and copper helps add to soil conditioning which trace minerals sometimes are locked up in the soil or are lacking altogether. Then too, a supply of organic or humus in the fertilizer absorbed into the top soil to promote activity of beneficial soil bacteria and humic acids.

DICHONDRA LAWNS may be planted from flats, cut into squares and set out in rows. Easiest way to plant dichondra is to sow he seeds.

Whichever way you do it, be sure to top dress it with steer manure or an organic spread mulch material. Covering evenly five sacks to a thousand square feet. Keep the area moist until dichondra has grown together.

You can start dichondra in a grass lawn, provided you'll be patient and realize it'll take several years for di-chondra to start to crowd out grass. Here's how you can do it. Mow lawn close. Don't let grass clippings fall on lawn. Scatter five pounds of dichondra seed to 1,000 square feet of lawn area. Top dress evenly five sacks of organic spread material to thousand square feet. Water well. Keep moist like a new lawn. Do not mow lawn for about three weeks. Then, mow lawn close and regularly, keep moist, About six to eight weeks after sowing, fertilize lightly with a lawn fertilizer, thereafter feed about two to three months throughout the summer.

Gardening for the Kitchen

By Walter Finch

DOES THE AROMATIC freshness of garden herbs accent your cooking? Are fresh-picked vegetables featured at your table? If you answer "no" to these then you need a kitchen garden.

Kitchen gardens are com-monplace in France, where their contribution to the good life is legendary. And any serious gourmet-or any one who aspires to culinary success-should consider planting such a garden in his back vard.

A check with any member of the California Association of Nurserymen reveals that growing a kitchen garden is as simple as growing annual flowers. Many of your fav-orite garden herbs and vegetables are available as seedling plants, while those that aren'l grow easily from seed.

If your space is really limited, start with a basic few and add their enjoyment to your life. Start your kitchen garden with half a dozen herbs and an equal number of salad greens and other vegetables.

SAGE, THYME, savory, marjoram and rosemary take up little more space than a potted geranium and often not as much. They are available as seedlings. A packet of parsley seed, soaked over-night in tepid water to encourage germination will come on easily in a few weeks.

Lettuce of several varieties is a good starting point for gardener-chefs. You'll notice the difference in your salads right off. Broccoli, cauliflower and celery are also to be found as small plants in nursery flats. And it takes only a few tomato plants to keep the average family happy right through summer.

From seed will come the likes of string beans and summer squashes - two or three hills of squash is enough for most families; four or five will feed your neighbors, too, which isn't a bad idea.

So take your pick. All are easy to grow and if space is available, all should be grown. If you have room for only a minimum kitchen garden, don't hesitate to plant it. The few meals it provides will give you a taste of the good

Flower Show

Belmont Heights Garden Club will hold its May Flower Show at 1 p. m. Tuesday in Belmont Heights Methodist Wesley Hall, Mrs. Elizabeth Berland's garden in Bell-flower will be shown on color slides. Members are asked to bring their entries early.

Hostesses are: Therese Frost, chairman, Minnie Powell, Geneva Herolz, Dorothy Bourgeois, Nettie Peugh, Anna West, Mable Wilson and Alma Rifchey.

Tips on Gardening

GARDENING TIPS for the week . . . An interesting ornamental for local growing conditions is brunfelsia, often referred to poetically as "yesterday, today and tomorrow." This subject is not nearly as well known as it should be. It is a compact growing shrub completely covered during the spring with blue and white flowers.

You need not be a millionaire to have orchids. The fact is that you can grow them yourself in your own garden and outdoors at that. The cymbidium orchid is noted for its ease of culture. The flowers appear in huge sprays and are at their best during winter and spring, A shady and protected location is advisable.

African violets are rapidly becoming one of our most popular indoor plants. A clue to their successful culture is concerned with the method of watering: Make certain that the temperature of the water is the same as that of the room in which the plants are growing.

This might be a good time to re-pot your pot plants. Soils become worn out and a new growing medium will work wonders. Also examine the roots of your plants to check on whether or not they have become pot-bound. It is advisable to shift plants to a pot just one size larger than the previous one.

Cannas for a Smash of Color

Massed planting of cannas is any scheme of landscaping.

By Bob Gilmore

F YOU WANT a smash of color that can be seen a mile away then plant cannas. These tropical plants, so widely used for public plantings, fit admirably into the average sized garden for massing or hedge effects. But the plants should not be crowded. For best results they require a fairly large

Southern California is one of the few regions in the United States where cannas can be grown in the open during the entire year. The plants, being natives of tropi-cal areas, cannot tolerate frost or extremely cold weather. Up until just a few years ago they were grown almost entirely for their foliage effects. But the hybridists have developed the flowers to such an admirable degree that now the foliage is of secondary value,

The colors run through vivid shades of orange, yel-low, pink, salmon and white.

THE PETALS of certain varieties are recurved, a feature that adds a novel appeal to the plants. The blooms show an irregularity of form and are produced in terminal clusters. This profusion of flowers, all grouped tightly together, brings about a very

There are dozens of named varieties with new ones being introduced all the time. A few of the better known types are: Mrs. Pierre S. du Pont, extra large flowers of watermelon pink with green foliage; Los Angeles, rosy-red flowers; Ambassador, one of the best of the bronze foliage bold effect.

SOLUTION TO TODAY'S PUZZLE (See Page 78)

florets; Eureka, white with a yellow center.

BECAUSE OF their dislike for frosty weather, cannas should not be planted until the ground warms up thoroughly in the spring. Best results are obtained when the plants are set in solid blocks or bold masses. They per-form well as a hedge plant but one or two isolated speciments will prove of little value. Allow plenty of room between plants, setting them from 18 to 24 inches apart.

The secret of successful culture is plenty of water during the summer months.

A deep, rich soil with excellent drainage is required. Use god garden loam with liberal quantities of well-rotted manure. Make certain the manure has lost its heat or the plants may be burned. The planting bed should be several inches higher than the surface, this condition providing excellent drainage of excess moisture.

HOW TO Protect Auto Against Rust

I. WHERE RUST has pitted the chrome trim and bumpers, or where the bump-er ends have nudged and picked up paint, bring back original shine with a house-hold cleanser. Use type made specially for removing rust spots. Besides its fast chemical action, it has abrasive qualities to remove paint. Wipe away dried powder. Then seal chrome with clear acrylic or lacquer finish.

WHERE RUST has taken hold, loosen scale with a wire brush. Remove all loose metal dust with a vacuum.. Then apply a heavy coat (or two) of a special kind of paint that soaks into and combines with "tight" rust. Spread the paint extra heavily around body-bolts. This is where water stands the longest. Stab the paint in with the tip of your brush for good Coverage.
(Copyright, Beller Homes and Gardens)

2. RUST CAN DO damage where floor padding and collected dirt hold moisture against metal. The best pre-ventive is frequent brushing or vacuuming underneath the pad. Too, be sure the windows, doors and the windshield of your car are leak-proof. If the padding is wet, roll it back so the air can dry it. If it is badly damaged, you can buy replacement mats at most auto supply dealers.

GEORGE TRIBELHORN Charcoal-Broiled, of Course

AS THEY descend into the catacombs, visitors to the Ivanhoe Room get a spooky look at how prisoners fared in the dungeons of King Arthur's day.

Frankly, the prisoners didn't find life at all comfortable. The catacombs, which form the east entrance to the Ivanhoe Room (located in the basement below the Lafayette Hotel's lobby) are populated by a sorry lot of ne'er-do-wells in barred cells. Included are crumbling skeletons, a pretty, languishing blonde (a dummy) and a peeved stuffed cobra.

When they arrive in the Ivanhoe Room proper, the visitors find themselves in a different world entirely. Luxury is the word here. The dining room and bar are furnished with the swank trappings of King Arthur's palace. And the charcoal-broiled steaks are so delicious the King himself would have thundered words of praise.

PRAISE IS certainly deserved by George Tribelhorn, the hotel's catering manager, and Chef Joe Dunham, who are responsible for the quality cuisine served in the Ivanhoe Room. Praise is also rated by Al (the General) Kuster, the head waiter who thought-fully helps the guests choose their steaks at the glass showcase where the meat is sliced and weighed. The New York, filet and sirloin steaks are 35 cents an ounce (minimum served with dinners $3.25) which include glasses of wine, chilled relishes, big salads, Idaho baked potatoes and coffee. Also featured are broiled Australian lobster tails, $3.50.

Tribelhorn also directs the activities of the hotel's numerous banquet and party rooms, available for meetings, breakfasts, luncheons, dinners, receptions and presentation balls. The rooms, which seat groups from 75 to 1850, are the International Ballroom, Supper Room, Cavalier Room, Starlight Roof, Red Velvet Room, Panorama Room, Boulevard Room and Camco Room.

Chisscrossed by a tracery of flame-colored fragments, the sleek F-86 Saberjet in the photo above seems to have been shattered by a spectacular direct hit of machine-gun fire. But the weapon that scored the bull's-eye was not a 50-caliber spitting bullets. It was a Hasselblad camera loaded with high-speed film.

Aloft for the first time to photograph aerial maneuvers of the Florida Air National Guard, photographer Buddy Gaines of Cypress Gardens idly wondered what would happen if he snapped his shutter just as a plane passed between him and the bright Florida sun. All afternoon he drew beads on passing aircraft, then late in the day went "downstairs" to develop the result. To his surprise, Gaines found that plane after plane seemed to have broken up in flames. With only his camera, Gaines had qualified as a jet fighter "ace."

A TRAGEDY OF SUCCESS

by LLOYD SHEARER

HOLLYWOOD.

This is an anticle I did not want to write. I was a close friend of the Mario Lanzas for 15 years, and saw no point in rattling family skeletons or exposing the private hells of two bedeviled people. I felt urged, however, to tell some of the basic truths of the lives of Betty and Mario Lanza because several Lanza biographics and magazine articles are currently in preparation, some by writers with only a hearsay knowledge of the subject. This article is therefore presented in the cause of accuracy, and in the hope that other talented youngsters may resist the temptations to which the Lanzas succumbed.

Seven years ago, Terry Robinson, his trainer, and I accompanied the late Mario Lanza, singing and motion picture star, to a clinic for nervous disorders in New York

At the time Lanza was a wild, volatile, curly-haired built of a man, 30 years old, 5 feet 9 with lifts in his shoes and so emotionally disturbed that he weighed 267 nounds.

When we arrived from Hollywood after a harrowing and riotous flight—Mario, under the influence of sedatives and liquor, behaved outrageously—Terry and I hustled him to a friend's apartment in mid-Manhattan. Here each of us took turns pulling guard duty. Our major objective was to prevent Lanza and his bottle from joining forces.

I stood guard for the first hour while Terry cabbed down to the Fat Men's Shop in the Bowery and purchased for Mario a pair of trousers with a 52-inch waist and three shirts each with a size 20 collar.

When Terry relieved me, I walked to the clinic near the East River. There I talked to a psychiatrist who agreed to examine Lanza.

. A Geyser of Hate

I explained to the doctor that after filming three successful motion pictures at MGM, Mario had become a geyser of hate spouting hostility on everyone and everything. I told of his alcoholism, which by then had reached an advanced stage. I told of his fights with his wife, which often approached mutual murder, of his pathological and consistent lying, of the dangerous and brutal ways in which his hostility manifested itself.

For example, if Mario decided that he didn't like

Joe Pasternak, an MGM producer, he would jump into his Cadillae, the trimmings of which he ridiculously insisted were made of 14-carat gold, race to Pasternak's house and ram the car bumper into the post holding up the mail box until it toppled over. Or if he found the house-gate closed, he would use the car as a battering ram, tearing the gate from its hinges. Mario would speed off with blood-curdling oaths and cries of triumph.

Frequently, following such crusades, he would return home. In his powerful and lachrymose tenor he would then stir your soul singing ballads and arias hour after hour. The singing in some strange way exorcised the hatred deep and tortoring in his mind.

The doctor at the clinic suggested 1 bring in Mario that afternoon. "The sooner the better," he said.

Clad in his new clothes, which gave him the appearance of an unmade bed or a walking tent, Lanza, after hours of desperate persuasion, trundled into the clinic. He was sober, defiant, suspicious.

The psychiatrist questioned him for several hours. Terry and I waited. Then the doctor sent for me, I met Mario coming down the hallway. He was furious.

In costume, Mario clowns duet with comedian Jimmy Durante. At peak of shart career Lanza earned over $1 million a year.

"Where did you find that phony doctor?" he bellowed. "He's a quack. He's a nut, and so are you! This is no hospital. This is a nut-house, And the tiger's breakin out! You hear me? The tiger's breakin out!"

Lanza loved to refer to himself as "the tiger."

And with that he sprinted down the foyer shouting at the top of his lungs a series of vile onths both American and Italian that he had learned as a small boy on the streets of South Philadelphia.

The psychiatrist told me Lanza was a sick man who had lost touch with reality. "Like many actors," he pointed out, "he doesn't know who he really is or who he really wants to be. He needs treatment immediately."

A Doctor's Prophecy

"I venture the opinion that untreated he will be dead within 10 years, and so might his wife unless she's a very strong person." (How prophetic that doctor was!)

I phoned Betty in Beverly Hills. "The doctor says Mario needs treatment immediately. I know he won't sign himself in. I think you'd better come East and do it for him."

Betty demurred. "If I ever, did that, he'd kill me. Please, please see if you can talk him into committing himself. If he doesn't, I know we're not long for this world. We just can't go on like this."

Mario, of course, refused treatment. He insisted he was in excellent shape "except maybe for a little too much weight, and I can diet that off in two weeks." He explained his psychoneurotic behavior-pattern by pointing out that he was in the great, unique, genins tradition of Enrico Caruso.

"Tigers," he roared, "the two of us are tigers. They couldn't control Caruso, and they can't control me." Always his enemy was the elusive "they"—ill-defined and unclear but relentlessly conspiring to fix his doom. "I'll get every last one of them," he would threaten. In the end "everyone of them" turned out to be himself.

On October 7, 1959, Mario Lanza—real name: Alfredo Arnaldo Cocozza—died in Rome. No major Hullywood studio would take a chance on filming with him. They might distribute films he made abroad, but considered domestic production too risky.

Lanza was 38. He suffered from phlebitis, inflammation of the veins, and blood clot in a coronary artery. This was the immediate way in which be died. Actually, he had been destroying himself for years.

Dissipation shows in Mario's bloated face, eyes over-bright, smile forced. Wife Betty is with him.

Five months later, on March 11, 1960, his wife Betty Lanza died in Beverly Hills. The immediate cause of her death is unknown, but the circumstances surrounding it are sufficiently shocking as to be unprintable at this time.

What happened to these two young, bright, handsome people? They tasted fame, fortune, power. They were blessed with four lovely children. Their future seemed golden. Where on life's road did they take the wrong turn? Who and what was responsible?

We all carry within us the seeds of our own destruction and our own salvation. In the final analysis, Betty and Mario brought on their own premature deaths. But the fellow-conspirator in their disaster was-Success in Hollywood.

Death in the Street

Betty and Mario Lanza came from poor stock-poor in the money sense of the word-she from Chicago, he from Philadelphia. As a boy and only child in an Italian immigrant family, Mario, according to neighbors, was spoiled, insecure, truant and rambunctious. One of the earliest, most ineradicable memories he liked to recall "was watching my uncle get it. The hoods came flying down my street; they let him have it with a sawed-off machine gun right in the guts. I'll never forget it, the blood, the blood, the blood."

As a youngster Lanza was expelled from high school, he once told me, for punching a teacher"Nobody ever pushed the tiger around," he explained.

In World War II, because he possessed a tenor voice of power and range, Lanza was assigned to Winged Victory, a Special Service show. In Los Angeles, Bert Hicks, a fellow-soldier in the outfit, introduced Lanza to his 21-year-old sister Betty. She and Mario dated for months. When Lanza, following his discharge from the Army, proposed marriage, Betty assented. They were married on Friday, April 13, 1945, in the Beverly Hills municipal court. Neither family knew about the marriage. And the truth is that neither Betty nor Mario knew very much about the other.

In New York, where their honeymoon began, the Lanzas moved into the Park Central Hotel, Mario began studying with Polly Robertson, a voice teacher.

Another of Miss Robertson's pupils was a mousey. mustached man named Sam Weiler, owner of a boys summer camp in Pennsylvania. One afternoon Sam heard Mario Lanza sing.

Subsequently he offered to pay Lanza's bills, finance his vocal training, subsidize him. Betty said that on $70 a week she and Mario would be able to get along. Weiler gave the Lanzas $70 a week in return for 5 per cent of Lanza's gross earnings. Later, another contract gave him 10 per cent, and a still later contract 20 per cent. In addition, when Lanza signed for the Coca Cola radio show, Weiler was made producer at $500 a week. His contract with Marin and Betty was one of the most lucrative deals Weiler ever made. He advanced the Lanzas $70 a week for seven months, and, according to Mario, "received more than $350,-000 from me in commissions."

Lanza was "discovered" by Hollywood in 1947. Overnight the Lanzas' living standards changed. For signing with MGM, Mario was given a flat $10,000 bonus and a starting salary of $750 a week. Bonuses from three films, including The Great Caruso, totaled an additional $175,000. By 1951 Mario Lanza was grossing $1,100,000 a year. He was the greatest single singing attraction in America.

He lived in a Beverly Hills mansion with butler, trainer, chauffeur, cooks, upstairs maid, nurse, gardeners. He surrounded himself with a press agent, business manager, stooges, song writers, song pluggers -the works. Fawning sychophants told him:

"Mario, you are the greatest . . . Tiger-boy! . . . Mario, you are three times better than Caruso in his prime . . . Mario, without you MGM would go broke ... You know General Sarnoff's greatest worry? It's you, tiger. If you leave RCA, they're dead. You're selling more records than any performer in history . . . You are a genius."

The God Complex

Lanza reacted by adopting what is known in Hollywood as "the god complex." When people complimented him on his voice, he would sanctimoniously reply: "The voice is not mine. It is a God-given gift. Why He's entrusted it to me I'll never know, but I hope to cherish it, to take care of it, to use it only to entertain people and make them happy. I am its keeper only for a little while."

Then came the blowup, MGM assigned Lanza to star in The Student Prince, Lanza refused. The studio suspended him, filed suit for $5 million, took him off the air. A few weeks later, Lanza asked Sam Weiler for a look at the books of Marsam Corporation, Mario's company. After earning a fortune, he was amazed to find that he had virtually nothing. There were harsh words. Weiler quit.

Quickly Lanza's "friends" began to disappear. Party invitations fell off. Merchants began asking for payment on delivery. Nowhere is the road down more slippery than in Hollywood.

Frustrated and angry, Lanza found temporary escape from reality in food. At one point he blew himself up to 280 pounds. Then he turned to drink. Quarrels with Betty became incessant. He blamed her for filmland's treachery, accused her of secretly preparing to desert him. Betty told him he was crazy. She would never leave him, no matter what.

The subsequent years were nightmares. Mario took psychiatric help, but only in conjunction with a dieting program. I pleaded with him to go to the Menninger Clinic in Topeka. I begged him to leave Hollywood, to study music in New York, Paris, Rome. "Figers don't run away," he answered.

But when all his money sources had dried up, "the tiger" had no alternative. He made a deal to star in a film in Rome. He took his family to Italy, worked around Europe and in Italy died, a relatively young man still bewildered and lost, never understanding how and why he had fallen from grace and fame.

After Mario died, there was nothing for his wife but the drive to forget, and to forget she enlisted the aid of drugs and drink, knowing full well that this was the speediest way to join her husband.

They were two people so completely corrupted by success that they preferred death to the experience of failure either together or alone.

WARM-UPS FOR WIVES

Pre-tested by ballplayers, these 10 exercises can make you happier, more fit

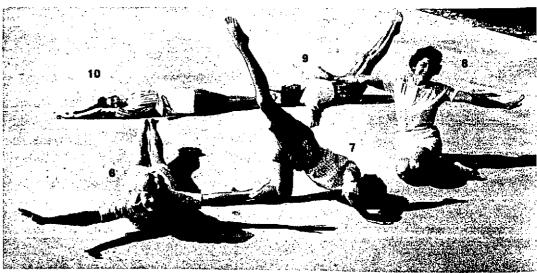

DIPPING AND TWISTING in these photos are wives of St. Louis Cardinal baseball players and officials. They are doing what their husbands had been doing—only better. The girls are flexing their way through 10 exercises prepared by Prof. Walter C. Eberhardt, director of physical education at St. Louis University.

Early this year the Cardinals asked "Doc" Eberhardt to help condition their aging star, 39-year-old Stan Musial. During spring training Eberhardt put the entire team through his twists, turns and stretches. Raves about the exercises got home to Cardinal wives. Soon several got together to try them.

"There are no miracle ways to keep fit," Eberhardt told the wives. "Besides watching your calories, you must do each of these exercises at least one infinite every day." Most women, Eberhardt finds, stick to exercises better than men, who prefer games. The pay-off for a woman, he adds, can mean as much as a home run to a ball-player. "She not only will look better," he says, "but she'll be free of minor aches and pains. And she'll sail through work—at home or in the office—without feeling so worn out at night that she can't enjoy her family or friends."

- 1 Mrs. Wally Shannon hops twice on left foot, then twice on right. Eberhardt calls this "warming up the motor."
- 2 Mrs. Johnny Keane bends forward, touches the floor three times, straightening on fourth count. "This is fine," says Eberhardt, "for conditioning the calf, thigh and hips."
- 3 Mrs. Bob Nieman flings her arms backward three times, then drops her arms at count of four. Mostly for improving posture, the exercise also strengthens shoulders and bust.
- 4 Mrs. Johnny Riddle bends trunk to the left side, straightens, then bends to the right, straightening again on fourth count. "This strengthens the trunk," says Eberhardt, "the section we use the least."
- 5 Mrs. Eddie Stanky touches right hand to the left foot, straightens with arms out from the body, then touches left hand to right foot, straightening on fourth count.

- 6 Mrs. Shannon arches her head, chest, arms and legs, holds them for a count, drops them to the floor and repeats.
- 7 Mrs. Keane bends both arms, touching head to floor, while raising right leg from kneeling position. Then she straightens arms, raising her head from floor while bringing leg buck to kneeling position. She repeats with left leg. "This is much like push-ups," says Eberhardt, "but tougher."
- 8 Mrs. Stanky swings both knees to the left till they touch the floor, then pivots and swings them to the right.
- 9 Mrs. Nieman slowly raises both legs till the feet face sky. Then she lowers them to the floor. Next she bends her legs and again slowly raises them—in four counts.
- 10 Mrs. Riddle stretches from the tips of her fingers to her toes on the first count, then relaxes. Declares Eberhardt: "I know of no better way to get rid of nervous tension."

My favorite jokes

EDITON'S NOTE: Gene Barry, who was born in New York, started his show business career as a singer and master of ceremonies, later graduated to Broadway musicals. In Hollywood he has told jokes at supper clubs, acted in some 20 motion pictures, sung on TV variety shows. In 1958, largely because he is tall (6 feet 1), manly, photogenic and personable, NBC decided to make him a western hero and cast him as Bat Masterson. This does not prevent Barry, however, from still giving out with his repertoire of jokes. Here are a few he likes to tell around the studio:

A HOLLYWOOD PRODUCER had just completed a real dull motion picture—a regular "bomb." It cost $5 million and ran more than five hours. The producer was desperate. As a last resort he called in six top Hollywood writers. He screened the movie for them, hoping that maybe one could come up with the magic suggestion to save the film.

The long, monotonous screening finished, the producer jumped to his feet and addressed the writers. "Well," he said, "you saw it. Now, are there any suggestions?"

One of the writers, after several moments of painful silence, announced: "I have a suggestion. I think this film should be cut."

Grasping at any straw, the producer said quickly, "Okay, where?"

"Right up the middle," the writer declared.

Two TEXANS, oil kings from the Fort Worth-Dallas area, flew to Oregon for a fishing vacation. After fishing several trout streams, they both sat down on the bank of the stream, ran their hands through the water.

Matt, the older of the two, came up with a handful of nuggets. He looked at a few of them and sure enough they were gold.

Turning to his partner, he remarked casually, "Jess, we better remember this place just in case the price of oil goes down."

VITANIINS

Hudson Vitamin Products proudly acknowledges the unsolicited mention received in "Remedies and Rackets," a new book by James Cook,* exposing the truth about patent medicine practices. Hudson stands out as one of the true money-saving sources for vitamins, in a book that pulls no punches in revealing startling facts in frank, authoritative reporting.

Perhaps one of the most shocking revelations, in the chapter titled "Vitamins and Voodoo," deals with the extremely wide variance of Vitamin and Vitamin-Mineral combination prices.

We reprint the following paragraphs by special permission:

"Actually, any particular vitamin bottled under one label is, for all practical and therapeutic purposes, the same as it is when bottled under another label. As a matter of fact, most of the vitamin concentrates consumed in our country are produced by only a few companies.

"The list of ingredients in a vitamin compound is one thing the consumer can almost always depend upon to be correct. Any company which fails to label the bottle with the exact formula and amount (or unit strength) of each ingredient risks a seizure by the Food and Drug Administration.

"Bearing that in mind it is enlightening to pick up a few vitamin catalogs and compare the prices charged by different companies for the same vitamin compounds." These three paragraphs—only part of the complete vitamin story—hold the key to sound vitamin buying habits. The Hudson Vitamin Catalog points up these price differences.

Hudson Vitamin Products has been serving doctors and nurses for over 25 years and now you, too, can purchase your Vitamins direct from Hudson at savings up to 50% and more. You'll find huge dollar savings on Vitamins, Vitamin-Mineral combinations and food supplements in our Free Vitamin Catalog.

Here are two typical examples of Hudson Sayings: a very popular multi-vitamin that is taken once-aday, regularly sells for about $3.10 per 100...the Hudson formula sells for only $1.50 per 100...here's another—a well known high potency B complex formula with Vitamin C and minerals nationally advertised at $5.95 per hundred...only $2.10 DIRECT, through the Hudson Catalog.

These are only two examples that prove you can save money...many, many dollars. If you have never received our FREE Vitamin Catalog — you at least owe it to yourself to check and compare. Write for Catalog and show it to your doctor if you like — but, by all means, discover for yourself why HUDSON has become a direct source for Vitamins throughout the Nation. ## How to match friends

and influence Cupid

by MRS. DALE CARNEGIE

Red-haired Dorothy Carnegic is the president of Dale Carnegie and Associates, N. Y., carrying on the work begun by the famed anthor of "How to Win Friends and Influence People." An anthor, lecturer and mother of two girls, she originated the Carnegie self-improvement courses for women.

MATCHMAKING is an ailment that seems to affect most people, especially married women. It can come on at any season, but it's worst in the spring.

The first symptom usually shows up just after a girl gets married, and you can spot it easily: the bride, determined to see all her single friends married off, too, gets that "whom can I introduce her to?" look in her eye.

Some people call this romantic; others say it's a case of misery-loves-company. Either way, the ones who suffer most in matchmaking are not the matchmakers but those they're trying to mate.

Every able-bodied woman over 15 at some time has been embarrassed by the maneuvering of the amateur matchmakers. In the five years since my husband's death I've had my share—enough to convince me that, much as I'm against matchmaking, neither I nor anyone else can stop a woman determined to play Cupid.

In self-defense and for the protection of their other would-be prey, here's some advice to matchmakers:

 Make sure both the man and the woman you plan to introduce to each other want to get married.

No bride believes it, but many of us prefer to be single. There's no law that everybody has to be paired off like Noah's ark.

Most men think of themselves as lone wolves. Push a man too hard toward matrimony, and you wind up with a confirmed bachelor. I know one man, single, well-to-do, good-looking, who's turning into a hermit because he can't go out without some matchmaker measuring him for double harness. Every time he's introduced to a lovely girl I know you'll like," he starts looking around for the nearest monastery.

So don't try pairing off the determined loners; try someone who's yearning to have his socks darned.

2. Pick people who seem to be compatible.

There's no trick to this—it's the same rule any good hostess applies to a party, but too many matchmakers seem to think it's enough if they just pick a male and a female.

I remember the time a friend picked me as the dinner partner for a very eligible man—who also happened to be a prominent New

So latch onto this 3-Star Instant special. Start with Instant TANG. What could be quicker—it mixes with cold water in seconds. No squeezing, no unfreezing or refrigeration. And best of all, TANG gives you more Vitamin C than orange juice! Wonderful "wake-up taste," too. • Then open a package of Post-Tens. Or choose Alpha-Bits—the oat cereal that spells energy from A to Z. Then complete your 3-Star Instant Breakfast with your favorite instant coffee.

Deal Democrat. I'm a Republican. That eliminated all conversation about him — a man's favorite topic — because I couldn't think of anything nice to say.

3. When you've picked your pair, don't let them know about it.

Never make it obvious that the only reason you polished the silver is to have John meet Jane. Best try your matchmaking at a party with plenty of other people around. You can always "need" an extra man or woman at a party; a choir is stronger than a duet.

4. Once you've introduced a couple, leave them alone.

Very often a couple that might have liked each other will hate each other simply because the hostess oversells the product.

Cupid merely uses an arrow, but matchmakers prefer heavy artillery. Most of them simply can't say "Jane, meet John" and let it go at that. They spend hours telling Jane what a hero John is, and more hours telling John that Jane makes Elizabeth Taylor look like a girl next door. Result: both John and Jane are disappointed.

On top of that, these matchmakers keep shooting cannon-balls:

"Don't you just love him?"

"Isn't she a marvelous girl?"
After a while both parties fee

After a while both parties feel they're being railroaded to the altar—and get off at the first possible stop.

Remember, too, that you don't have to put tags on people, like "This is John, who has a good job and likes dogs." Let them find out for themselves if they're interested.

And above all, don't hover.

5. If at first you don't succeed, never try it again with the same couple.

Perseverance has no place in matchinaking. If the first introduction doesn't take, give it up.

One of my dearest friends works at matchmaking like a boxing promoter: she does everything but hang out posters to insure a rematch.

She tried this on me once, telling me over and over again what a wonderful man I had met. Later I met the man again, this time just by chance, and we compared notes. He'd been getting the same continuous sales talk about me. The result, of course, was that we both had conscientiously tried to avoid each other because we were so embarrassed. We had a good laugh about it. But my friend didn't give up trying to pair us off until the man married someone else—in self-defense, I'm sure.

I don't suppose any number of rules will ever stop a determined matchmaker. But there's at least one I wish they'd remember:

The very best matchmaking is still the kind a girl and a boy do for themselves.

That's probably how the matchmaker got her man in the first place.

The "other grandparents," Colonel and Mrs. Percy Thompson resemble like and Manie.

Meet Barbara Eisenhower's parents

A little-known Army couple, they're a lot like Ike and Mamie

AVID, BARBARA ANNE, Susan and Mary Jean Eisenhower, as most of the world knows, have doing grandparents who live in a great white house at 1600 Pennsylvania Ave., Washington, D.C. But little is heard of the other grandparents who live in a red-brick house at 535 N.E. Ninth Ave. here.

The same childish drawings, scribbled letters and snapshots of the children that Ike and Mamie cherish also are treasured by retired Army Col. Percy Thompson and his wife, Beatrice. And at least once a year, the nation's most celebrated grandchildren roup here with their less-publicized grandparents.

The Thompsons, of course, are the parents of Barbara Thompson Eisenhower, who married the President's only son, John, and sometimes pinch-hits for Mamie as the President's official hostess. The Thompsons are proud of their daughter's famous in-laws, but they do not move in the White House orbit. They live quietly here—a town picked out for retirement years ago—where Thompson has carved out a new career at the age of 60. They seem almost embarrassed over having celebrities in the family.

Although the Thompsons and the Eisenhowers are not close, there are startling resemblances between them. Like the Eisenhowers, the Thompsons are an Army couple who shepherded an "Army-brat" family from Pentagon pillar to Army post. Percy Thompson's balding head, trim watstline and military bearing give him an Eisenhower look. With bangs, Beatrice Thompson might pass as Mamie's sister. She has the same frank, friendly face and quiet, cultured charm.

And the two sets of grandparents have other bonds—and other differences:

by JACK ANDERSON

Parade Washington correspondent

Their girl Barbara models Easter hat with mother-in-law.

The grandchildren: Each summer the four little Eisenhowers and their parents spend two to three weeks with "Grandma and Grandpa Thompson," as the Gainesville grandparents are called. (Less formally, the Gettysburg grandparents are "Ike" and "Mimi.") David tags along after Colonel Thompson, playing golf with him and wheedling him into playing baseball. "He's getting to be quite an athlete," says Grandpa Thompson proudly, in an echo of President Eisenhower.

The three girls spend most of their time in a backyard playhouse that the Thompsons had specially built for their grandchildren. A few years ago the girls, led by Barbara Anne, completely redecorated it.

Between visits, the little Eisenhowers write short notes to their grandparents, and usually send cards at Christmas and on birthdays. They also send gifts. One of Colonel Thompson's most treasured possessions is a key ring with a fob made by David. And one Christmas, Grandpa and Grandma's gift from the children was a can of peanuts. "It seems that the children like peanuts," Mrs. Thompson laughs.

Mrs. Thompson loves to sew, and has made cowboy suits for David and dresses for the girls. But the Thompsons also have six other grandchildren who, as Mrs. Thompson phrases it, "share equal billing in our hearts." (The rest of the clan: Air Force Capt. and Mrs. Joseph Thompson with three daughters, stationed in Nebraska; Army Lt. and Mrs. Richard Thompson with two sons; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Green with one daughter, living in Missouri.) They can't devote themselves exclusively to the quartet of little Eisenhowers as the President and Mamie can.

Someday the Thompsons would like a big Thompson family reunion in Gainesville. The children all could frolic together, and the fathers, three of them professional soldiers, could talk shop. So far military assignments have made their dream impossible. Like the Eisenhowers, the other grandchildren visit the Thompsons annually, but seldom at the same time. Among themselves, the cousins exchange visits and letters.

Last year the Thompsons took six weeks to make what Mrs. Thompson calls "the grand tour" of the family. They ended up at Gettysburg as the result of an SOS from Barbara. Then touring with the President in Europe and Asia, Barbara feared she might not be back for Christmas. She asked her parents to be on hand for the children's holidays. But the Presidential party returned in time.

Barbara and John: The Thompsons hear regularly from Barbara—like most parents, of course, not as often as they would like. She still calls on them in time of need: when each of the three oldest children was born, Mrs. Thompson was at her daughter's side. She ran the household

'Percy and Bea definitely do not keep in close

White House grandparents beam at cameras during family get-together recently. President holds hand of Mary Jean, 4. Next are David, 12; Susan, and took care of the children until Barbara was back on her feet. In the process, she also became close to her son-in-law, John.

The Thompsons enjoy John's company on his visits; since both he and his father-in-law are Army career men, they exchange shoptalk. And June 10, 1947---when Barbara and John were married—was a big day in the Thompsons' lives. They still speak fondly of all its details.

The romance came about because Colonel Thompson was transferred from the U.S. to a military government post in Vienna. Barbara quit Purdue, where she was studying science, to be with the family in Austria. She took an Army job as a typist and became the belle of the fiscal department.

One evening she was coaxed to a supper party by a girl friend, Beatie Dunham, to meet one of Beatie's husband's West Point friends. The blind date turned out to be tall, slim, sandy-haired Lt. John Eisenhower, Before long, Lieutenant Eisenhower sent home for the miniature class ring that West Pointers traditionally give to their intended.

The Thompsons sank every cent they could spare into a wedding suitable for the distinguished guests who came to see General Eisenhower's only son married. Afterward, the Thompsons were so broke they couldn't afford to buy their youngest daughter, Mary, a bathing suit. A cousin, Martha Waldo, dug out one of her old hand-me-downs.

The Eisenhowers gave the newlyweds a shiny new Chrysler sedan. The Thompsons' gifts were bedroom furniture, blankets, sheets and a rug. After the wedding, Mrs. Thompson collected all the wedding presents and took them to the couple's new apartment at Fort Benning, Ga.

The Colonel and the General: Unlike the President, who is a West Pointer, Colonel Thompson entered the Army out of Purdue in 1925. In World War II he served under lke as a battalion commander in North Africa but never met him. The only time the commanding general visited their sector, Colonel Thompson was away on reconnaissance. The two met for the first time a few days before Barbara and John's wedding.

Yet there are vague parallels in their careers. Like lke, Colonel Thompson began a new civilian career after his retirement. He struggled through the University of Florida Law School and was admitted to the bar in November 1958, a few days after his 60th birthday. He shares offices with Alachua County Commissioner Edgar Johnson and handles mostly negligence cases, debt collections, divorces and adoptions.

Johnson says of him: "For an attorney who has been out of law school only two years. the Colonel is as good as any and better than most." Colonel Thompson himself says, "Law is as challenging and competitive as military strategy, except that the means are peaceful.'

Also like Ike, Thompson has plunged into politics. He stuffed envelopes, manned telephones and hauled voters to the polls in 1956 for the local "Democrats for Eisenhower." He now acknowledges sheepishly, however, that he really was-and always has been-a Republican. "I don't think Percy and the President are the same kind of Republicans, though," says cousin Martha Waldo.

touch with Ike and Mamie'

Currently Thompson is a somewhat timid GOP candidate for Florida Secretary of State. He bravely insists that he is in the race to win but is given little chance in this Democratic state. His celebrated daughter is among the skeptics. "Barbara feels my candidacy is something of a gesture," he admits.

The Colonel did not notify the White House of his plans to run for office, and there has been no reaction from the President. "The Colonel does not lean on Ike at all," says associate Johnson, adding with a smile; "And Ike hasn't sent him any legal business."

Like the President, Colonel Thompson loves bridge and even plays "erratic" golf--although he prefers gardening and carpentry. He explains apologetically: "Golf takes a lot of time, and I'm too busy." He never has been an Ike golfing partner, and only once has he been a guest at a White House stag dinner.

The two grandmothers: Just as the Colonel is somewhat like the General, so are their wives somewhat alike. Beatrice Thompson is a gracious hostess. "There is warmth in her living room," say the Edgar Johnsons. "She has the knack of making people feel pleasant." At a recent bank opening she was observed quietly befriending a lady who had been standing alone on the fringe of the crowd.

Mrs. Thompson is an accomplished musician and artist. She plays first violin in the local symphony orchestra, entertains friends on the baby grand piano in her living room. The paintings found throughout the house are largely her own. She makes most of her own clothes, including the suit she wore to the last inauguration.

Mrs. Thompson is a volunteer hospital worker and led the local Mothers' March for the March of Dimes. Her husband was the drive's county chairman. After the Hungarian bloodbath, the Thompsons took in a Hungarian refugee. Mrs. Thompson painstakingly taught her English and cared for her until she could make her own way. "The Thompsons are fine neighbors," says Mrs. Thomas Snow, who lives just across the street.

The Eisenhower-Thompson relationship: "Our relationships with the Eisenhower family," says Colonel Thompson, "have always been very pleasant and cordial. Our Army backgrounds make for better understanding between us." The Thompsons see very little of their fellow grandparents, however.

Since Ike entered the White House, the Thompsons have been invited there only twice, for the 1952 and 1956 inaugurations. The two sets of grandparents exchange anniversary greetings, but otherwise do not write to each other.

In the Thompson living room, separate pictures of lke and Mamie are displayed on each side of the couch. Also on display is a reproduction of one of the President's paintings. It is of the kind, however, that goes out from the White House each Christmas to a long mailing list. "Percy and Bea definitely do not keep in close touch with Ike and Mamie," says cousin Martha. In this they are not much different from many other sets of grandparents.

The Thompsons of Gainesville have their world; the Eisenhowers of Washington have theirs. But there is one common subject that can create a warm glow in the White House or in the English Tudor house in Gainesville. And that is the latest doings of David, Barbara Anne, Susan and Mary Jean Eisenhower. Revolutionary 3-layer tablet for relief of

"I learned not to worry . . ."

". . . I use gay, bright colors . . .

". . . people don't like sad pictures."

EAGLE BRIDGE, N.Y.

RANDMA MOSES, one of the world's most unusual personalities, is preparing to mark her 100th birthday in September. Most of her long life differed little from that of other women in rural America. Then, when she was 80, Anna Mary Robertson Moses suddenly gained recognition as one of our country's foremost primitive artists. She was born on a farm just outside Greenwich (pop. 2,212), near Albany. Except for 18 years that she and her husband worked a farm in Virginia, she always has lived near her birthplace. This conversation took place when PARADE visited her in her home, on a son's farm about a dozen miles from where she was born.

--- ALLEEN SNODDY

Q Hello, Grandma Moses. You were reading a newspaper when we came in. Do you follow the news?

A Yes, I do. I read my newspapers every day before I take a nap. I'm getting lazy, though. I used to get up at 6 and paint until lunchtime and then read. Now I don't get up until 7.

Q What interests you most in the news?

A Politics. I've met that man Truman and Ike writes to me. I try to find out what they do with my taxes.

Q Looking back over the years, Grandma, what period in your life seems to have been the most satisfying? A I guess it was my childhood. But then, all folks as they get old like me think more of the past than of the present. Childhood is the happiest because we don't dread the future.

Q You had 10 children, Grandma, and five lived to be adults. You now have 11 grandchildren and 30 great-grandchildren living. You must have definite ideas about rearing children.

A Certainly, Most children would be better off if they got a good spanking now and then.

Q You have had a full life. What is your most vivid memory?

A It was when I was 4 years old. We were going to visit my grandmother and I had to put on shoes and stockings. On the way I saw oxen for the first time and wanted to get out of the buggy, take off my shoes and walk in the grass to see them. Mother wouldn't let me. When we got to Cambridge [N.Y.], everything was very quiet. Posts were draped in black. Finally, Mother asked a storekeeper about the black cloth and he said sadly that Mr. Lincoln had been shot. I remember Mother said, "What will we do now?" It was like a gloomy storm cloud covered us.

Q Grandma Moses, what led to your professional painting career?

A One day one of my daughters brought a yarn picture to me and said, "Mother, you can do better than that." I decided to try. I enjoyed doing needlework because I could listen to the gossip while I worked. You can't do that with regular painting because you've got to concentrate every minute.

Q What made you shift eventually from needlework to oil painting?

A The yarn faded and I wanted something more permanent. Also, rheumatism bothered my hands and it was easier to paint than do needlework.

Q Would you recommend painting for others in their later years?

A Yes, Painting is one of the most relaxing, lazy ways to enjoy yourself. You don't have to think about other things or worry while you paint.

Q You aren't a worrier, are you, Grandma Moses?

A No, I'm not, I don't have trouble sleeping because I don't worry. I learned long ago that it doesn't pay to worry because the things you worry about are always there. Worrying won't chase them away. Work will.

Q Grandma, September 7 you will be 100 years old. You've had a full, productive life. Do you have a message for persons in their 70s or older that may help them enjoy their remaining years more?

A I don't know how much good it will do but I would tell them not to think about growing old or dying. The Lord put us on this earth to enjoy ourselves, and we should. They will be happier if they forget about their age and think about helping others.

Hot and cold table: Here's an electric serving table (right) with two sections—one for hot, the other for cold foods. An unbreakable heating unit concealed under half the plastic surface keeps hot foods hot until eaten. The table is 27" high, has a 24"-x-19" serving area, is useful for snacks, hors d'oeuvres, buffet and as sideboard for seated dinners. Folds for storage. 539.75. Cornwall, Dept. PP, 48 Wareham St., Boston 18, Mass.

Stretch gloves for children: Now come leather gloves that no longer are luxuries because they grow with the child and last for years. Expanding side panels stretch to fit. Size A for 4 to 7 years; B for 8 to 12. Designed for both boys and girls. Tan or white capeskin. Washable. $4. American Astral, Dept. PP, 11 E. 36th St., New York 16, N.Y.

Battery saver: Using copper coins to stop battery terminal and clamp corrosion is practical with a new plastic device (right) that fits on all battery terminals. After coins have been sacrificed to capture acid fumes—thus helping to keep battery parts clean, reduce voltage loss and extend battery life—you can replace them without removing the device from battery. Two for 49¢. U.S. Polymer, Dept. PP, Box 262,1990 Broadway, New York 23, N.Y.

Magnetic earring: Requiring no clip, wire or screw, a new earring remains firmly and comfortably on the earlobe as if by magic. Secret: a tiny magnetic disk slips behind lobe and holds earring while remaining invisible in front. In pearl, gold and gem designs. $1 a pair, plus tax. Coro, Dept. PP, 47 W. 34th St., New York 1, N.Y.

Weather check: Temperature, rainfall, wind speed and wind direction can be noted at a glance with this little weather station (right). Mount it outside a window. Also useful on your boat. $2. Corrado, Dept. PP, 26 N. Clark St., Chicago 2, Ill.

Plate it with gold: A new 24-carat gold solution lets you gold-coat many common base metals simply by dipping—without electricity or special equipment. Use it to decorate kitchen utensils, lamp parts, picture frames, costume jewelry, auto trim, etc. 3 oz., good for 300 sq. in.: $2.98. Four Sisters, Dept. PP. 31 Chesley Rd., White Plains, N.Y.

Dog door hell: Does your dog have to scratch on the door when he wants in? This little door chapper (right) can save marred doors. It requires no wires or batteries, just two screws. With a few lessons, the dog will be able to ring for you. $3.95. Love Sales, Dept. PP, 1807 Church St., Nashville 3, Tenn.

FIVE FAMOUS DAUGHTERS

One doesn't want to be an actress

Here are the five daughters of five well-known motion picture stars: Ava Astaire, 17; Nancy Sinatra, 17; Maria Cooper, 20; Tish Sothern, 15, and Jane Fonda, 21.

All are lovely, all were raised at least for some years in the moviecolony, all have been offered motion picture or television contracts, all are photogenic. But one of the five does not want to follow in the parental footsteps and become an actress.

Can you guess which of these five young beauties does not want a show-business career?

She's tallest of the group: Maria Cooper. The daughter of Gary Cooper plans to become a commercial artist. What talent she has, she says, was probably inherited from her father. Before he became an actor, "Coop" was a cartoonist and sign-painter in Hollywood.

LITERARY LION ROARS AT BIG CAR COSTS

"I can't even write a check" growled the literary (ion. "Sure, I wrote a best-seller, but that big, gas-hungry car keeps drinking up the royalties. Besides, I spend half my day trying to park it."

He took a drive in a new foreign-type U. S. car. As he stooped his way out, he said: "I feel like I've got rider's cramp all over. If I drave this car, I wouldn't be able to write anything but horror stories."

At a literary tea, he found the answer in the bottom of his cup. "Go Rambler" said the leaves. Six cups later, he had the full message: "Get big car room and comfort, small car economy and handling ease."

"Fact or fiction?" he wondered. But not for long. He found Rambler has room for six 6-foot authors; is easy to get in and out of; parks where most other cars can't; is the proved economy king.
